Allen said he was interested in the moral development of children as a teacher and he believed a curfew law would aid the children physically, mentally and morally. The night air is not good for young people or for animals and their exercise should be taken in the sunlight. Mr. Allen stated incidentally that gymnasium exercise was not so beneficial as that taken in the open air. Mothers are not willing that their children should play in the streets and loiter about after dark. He quoted an authority to show that 95 per cent. of children who are given good surroundings during youth will grow up to lead virtuous lives. Teachers who are experts in the management of children believe that the curfew is a capital scheme, the police say that it would be of great assistance to them and to the community and Mr. Allen had letters from the mayors and chiefs of police of Waltham, Cambridge, Malden, Somerville and Everett heartily endorsing the curfew.

Mr. Allen cited one instance where a West Newton mother whose son had been recently sentenced to jail, had stated that she believed a curfew law would have enabled her to have controlled her son and prevented his disgrace.

In closing, Mr. Allen said he did not appear for the aldermen's children nor for his own but for the children of the poor widows of the city.

A letter was read from Mr. Geo. A. Walton favoring the curfew and the hearing was then closed. The matter was subsequently referred to the Committee on Rules, etc.

Communications from the school committee requesting $2,075 for furnishing the science department at the High school and for $400 for laboratory supplies at the High school were referred to the Finance Committee. The school committee reported that at the request of the aldermen they had appointed their school house committee as a sub-committee to confer with a sub-committee of the aldermen in the matter of new school houses. President Weed then announced that the committee on the part of the aldermen was composed of Aldermen Chesley, Saltonstall and Carter.

A petition of the B. & W. Street Railway Co. for amendment to its order of location on Parker and Dedham streets was referred to the Committee on Public Franchises, and on motion of Alderman Mellen the time in which said Company was to petition the railroad commissioners for approval of said location was extended for 60 days.

T. W. Trobridge was reappointed an auctioneer and petitions of Ira Locke for billiard and pool table licenses in Nonantum square, of Billy Arduino for a wagon license and of the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. for attachments on Walnut street, on Newtonville avenue, and for pole locations on Nahant, Dedham Park, Sargent, Mill, Bellevue-Crafts, Harvard, Eldredge, Walnut, Austin, Tremont, Nonantum, Bowers, Willard, Watertown, Chapel, Adams, Washington, Elmwood, Ward streets, Hunnewell avenue, Elm road, Hyde avenue, Waverley avenue, were referred to the Committee on Public Franchises, etc., hearings being assigned on the Telephone petitions for March 12, at 7:45 p. m.

A petition of A. C. Fullerton for a sewer in Adams avenue was referred to the Committee on Public Works.

Reports from the Committee on Public Franchises, etc., recommending the granting of an Innholders' license to Z. H. Tyler, Elliott street, the appointment of Chas. S. Cowdrey as a weigher of coal and measurer of wood and bark and that the Tel. Co. be granted leave to withdraw on matter of attachment on Walnut street, and the Gas Co. be granted leave to withdraw on matter of pole location in Newtonville square were accepted.

Reports from the same committee recommending the granting of attachments on Langley road, Chase and Chestnut streets to the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. were received and orders granting the same were adopted.

Alderman Mellen from the select committee appointed to recognize the services of Mr. Samuel M. Jackson as an assessor presented the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, Samuel M. Jackson served the town of Newton two years in the capacity of assessor, and since its incorporation as a city has served the City of Newton twenty-nine years as assessor, and during the fourteen years last past has been chairman of the board, and has recently laid down the duties of his office.

THEREFORE, RESOLVED, that in behalf of all the citizens of Newton, this board will hereby express to Mr. Jackson its appreciation of his long, arduous and effective public service. To excellent judgment, Mr. Jackson added a firmness and decision of character which made him eminently fitted for the discharge of the duties of his exacting office. He was uniformly courteous and considerate in dealing with his fellow citizens, while at the same time guarding most zealously what he conceived to be the highest interests of the tax payers of our city.

We will follow him to his retirement not only with an expression of thankfulness for his long continued and faithful service but also with good wishes for his future health and happiness under the smile of a benign Providence.

RESOLVED, that these resolutions be spread upon the records of the board and a copy sent to Mr. Jackson.

Alderman Mellen—More than a full generation of men has passed on and off the scene of action since Mr. Samuel M. Jackson commenced to serve the citizens of Newton as an Assessor. He was elected to the office in 1868 only three years after the close of our civil war.

The time in which he has been engaged in the City of Newton has been a history making epoch. When first elected, Andrew Johnson was President of the United States and in that same year Ulysses S. Grant was elected; since then we have had eight presidents of the United States. During this period the southern states had been reconstructed, specie payments resumed, the War with Spain successfully fought, foreign territory acquired, and the United States become a world power. All this and more has taken place since Mr. Jackson started his career as Assessor in Newton.

In our own Commonwealth when Mr. Jackson assumed his duties, the silver tongued orator, Alexander H. Bullock of Worcester County was Governor, immediately succeeded in that great office by our own beloved citizen, William Claflin. Since then there have been fourteen Governors of Massachusetts. In Mr. Jackson's first term the town contained 8978 citizens. Its real estate and personal property was valued at $14,441,169. When Newton became a city in 1874 and Mr. Jackson received his appointment to the Board of Assessors, the value of all real estate and personal property was $28,810,445, and the population 16,105.

Today the population is estimated to be rising to 37,000 and the valuation as of May 1st, 1902, of real and personal property is rising $62,000,000.

Mr. Jackson has not always been popular, he has sometimes made mistakes, but to say this is simply to say that he is human, for "it is human to err." He is a remarkable man and has never failed by "standing still." As Theodore Roosevelt says, "It is better to go forward even if we go forward wrong." Mr. Jackson has always advanced and been abreast of the time during all his public service.

It is fit and proper then that we as a city government recognize long and faithful service when such a public servant is about to retire from office. I take great pleasure in moving the acceptance and adoption of the resolutions as presented.

Alderman Ensign—The remarks of the alderman from Ward 5 are certainly very interesting from their historical character. It is remarkable for a gentleman to remain so long in a position such as Mr. Jackson has held. Descended from the early Newton citizens and performing exacting and important duties with great acceptance it is fit that this Board should pay him tribute in recognition of his character and public services. I was once engaged in a case where three Assessors, one from Newton, one from Watertown and one from Boston were called to decide a very important matter that it had to go before the Supreme Court. I remember how carefully Mr. Jackson considered the subject, his opinion coinciding with the Assessor of Boston as against the opinion of the Assessor from Watertown.

Mr. Jackson was anxious that the interests of Newton should be carefully protected. I have heard him spoken of in other official relations. He is connected with one of our Savings Banks and is careful and conscientious in every detail. I think sometimes we do not appreciate our city officials as we ought. Faithful men in these positions deserve just as much credit as those in generally accepted higher positions. I heartily second the resolutions and trust that they will be adopted by a rising vote.

The resolutions were then unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

President Weed announced the appointment of Alderman, Ensign, Col. Isaac F. Kingsbury and Marcus Morton, Esq., as a commission to consider the matter of public records. And at 8:30 p. m. the board adjourned until March 23 at the usual hour.

A PLAIN CITIZEN'S PLAINT.

As our hearts will soon be gladdened with the days we know as Spring, Let me ask of good Dame Nature if she'll let the robins bring Many things, which through the winter tried our souls and made us ache, And which really ought be settled just for dear old Newton's sake.

Make the "cops" forget their troubles and resume their search for crime, It's too hot to think of "hearings" in the good old summer time. Make the "coal club" cut its prices, let us all refill our bins, If the dealers become generous we'll forgive them all their sins.

Make the golf clubs get together, for they're just the crowd, I ween, To make Brookline look quite silly with their "tearing of the green." Have the south-side grades abolished, they have worried us for years, And while talking New York Central let us all have lower fares.

Can't we have our Sunday fruit stands? for, with many strangers here, We might want to entertain them with some ginger-pop or beer. O yes, birdies, there are other pleadings I might introduce, But a gentle voice has stopped me as it whispers, "What's the use."

Death of H. C. Dimond.

Mr. Henry C. Dimond, the well known manufacturer of rubber stamps of Boston, died Sunday morning at his home on Lake street, Newton Highlands, after a long illness.

Mr. Dimond was born in the South End, Boston, in 1844, and attended the Quincy grammar school. When a boy he learned the machinists' trade at the Hinkley and Drury locomotive works, and later worked for a number of years at the South Boston machine company's works.

At the outbreak of the civil war he enlisted among the nine-months' men in the 42d Mass. regt. and went with the regiment to New Orleans. He was under the command of Col. Burrill, later street commissioner of Boston. His company got to New Orleans, and he was there and at Port Hudson during the term of his first enlistment, caring for prisoners and doing other duty.

He went out again on the second call for 30-day men, and saw service in Washington toward the close of the war.

Some time after he returned home Mr. Dimond began business on his own account at 22 Milk street, where for 30 years until recently he had carried on the rubber and metal stamp trade. Recently the firm moved to 185 Franklin street.

For nearly three years Mr. Dimond has been in failing health, and his death was not unexpected.

In 1872 he married Mrs. Susan M. Buxton of Salem, who survives him. Mr. Dimond lived in Brookline up to six years ago when he moved to Newton Highlands, where he had since resided. He was a member of post 7, G. A. R., of Massachusetts, of Siloam Lodge, I. O. O. F., and of De Molay commandery, K. T.

Funeral services were held at his late residence, Lake avenue, at 1 o'clock, Wednesday, Rev. Albert Hammett being in charge, and there was a large attendance of friends, including a delegation from Post 7, G. A. R. There was singing by a quartet and the interment was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Mr. Jackson Surprised.

In recognition of the services of Mr. Samuel M. Jackson, Assessor, and for many years Chairman of the Board, and who has now retired, the members of the present board and the surviving members of the Assessors, and Assistant Assessors who had served with Mr. Jackson during his long term of service, invited him to a reception and dinner in his honor.

This occurred at the home of Mr. Albert H. Ruffe at Newton Centre on Monday evening, March 2nd, and was a very enjoyable occasion. Nineteen gentlemen took part in the affair. After the table was cleared Mr. Jackson was presented with a library table and chair, the gift of the members. Mr. Jackson responded in fitting words in acknowledgement of the gift and of the honor conferred upon him; the speaking which followed was in a happy vein and experiences of Assessors, sketches of comical incidents happening in their line of duty, and of the lights and shadows of the Assessors' calling brought to a close a very pleasant evening.

BETTER SERVICE IS PROMISED.

Changes in the control of ownership of no less than nine electric lighting companies in the vicinity of Boston have been made within the past few weeks. Five of these companies have been bought by the Edison electric illuminating company of Boston, and four others have been bought by a syndicate. The ultimate disposition of the latter companies has not been decided.

Charles L. Edgar, president and general manager of the Edison company, made the following statement yesterday.

"The electric lighting companies in the towns of Dedham, Milton, Canton, Natick, and Framingham have been bought by me in the interest of the Edison electric illuminating company, and will be turned over to the Edison company just as soon as the permission can be obtained from the board of gas and electric commissioners.

The majority of the stock of the Newton and Watertown gas and electric company, the Chelsea gas light company, the Somerville electric company and the Woburn electric company has recently changed hands and has been bought by some gentlemen connected with the electric lighting companies of Boston. The disposition of these four companies has not yet been decided, nor have they as yet been offered to anybody.

The five companies obtained by the Edison company will be operated eventually from the power station which we are now building in South Boston. We are now dealing with the preliminary plans of what will be the second largest electric lighting station in America, the largest being at Chicago.

"Regarding these companies, let me say that there will be no raise in the price of lights and no change in the local management of them. The principal change will be in the fact that we will furnish the light and water from our plant in South Boston, and the local managers will continue to operate the company as at present.

"There will be one great advantage, however, because of the sale. It will be possible for these five companies to get a 24-hour service, and to get as good and reliable service as we now furnish our patrons in Boston. As soon as the frost is out of the ground we will begin the work of running the necessary wires, and we hope to install the service within six months."

Where Cobras Are Held to Be Sacred.

The Hindus on account of their superstition are very loath to destroy a cobra. It appears prominently in their mythology, and it is venerated both as a symbol of a malicious and destructive power and also a beneficent one. According to Mr. A. K. Forbes, cobras are looked upon as guardian angels, and there is a Bengalese tradition that a male infant auspiciously shaded by a cobra will come to the throne.

The Ophthalmometer

An instrument used in Testing the Eyesight.

The Ophthalmometer is the result of combined research on the part of some of the most eminent eye specialists of our time. The different ailments which the human eye is heir to, are many, and in order to correctly diagnose them, it was found necessary to improve on the old-fashioned test case; therefore after careful thought and study of all the needs of the human eye, the Ophthalmometer was invented to fill a long-felt want among the optical practitioners of the present day.

It costs you absolutely nothing for consultation or examination.

The value of this wonderful instrument is beyond comprehension, when you take into consideration that today the human race is fast becoming blind because of the constant use of electric lights.

Remember the eye is the most delicate member of the human anatomy and should not be neglected.

To substantiate this assertion, we would ask the reader to look at the vast number of people who are wearing glasses—even a large proportion of the children in our schools are obliged to use them. But although there are so many who, having attended to the bad condition of their eyesight and are now wearing glasses, there are thousands who are neglecting the needs of their eyes, and thereby allowing the eyesight to become impaired. Are you one of this kind?

If so, I will guarantee to improve your vision provided there is any vision left.

If the eyes feel dull and heavy, or have a blurring sensation come upon them, if two distinct objects are seen while looking at one, or if you are troubled with headaches, with inability to distinguish distant objects or to read clearly at a distance of fifteen inches from the eye—then you need glasses, and the sooner you attend to defective sight the better.

Remember it costs you absolutely nothing to have your eyes tested.

There are many people today who are trying to cure headache by means of medicine, when in reality they should consult an optician. There are also a great many people who are wearing glasses which do not properly fit the eyes; and in a case of this kind, it would be far better to cast them aside altogether.

I have decided to locate permanently in Watertown since coming here five weeks ago. I have been busy almost every minute, and have therefore come to the conclusion that in Watertown, and vicinity there is a good field for an eye-sight specialist. There are thousands of people here in my opinion who should wear glasses. The neglect to which they are subjecting their eyes will sooner, or later, assert itself. If people only knew what that means, they would hasten to correct those defects. Look to your children particularly. I also wish to state that I can save you at least fifty percent on your glasses by getting them at home. It is my special object to please my patrons. Remember all tests absolutely "Free of Charge." Open daily until 6 P. M. Thursdays and Saturdays until nine.

Fitted $1.50, Regular Price, $3.50.

Now at 28 Main St, WATERTOWN, Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Remember the TESTS ARE ABSOLUTELY FREE.

Washington Letter.

Washington, D. C., March 2, 1903. Senator Morgan of Alabama has shown his hand and his determination to defeat the ratification of the Panama Canal treaty. When pressed in a recent executive session, to permit a date to be set for a vote on the treaty Mr. Morgan flew into a rage. After he had refused to permit a vote on any day during the remainder of the session, Senator Cullom charged the Alabama senator with talking against time with the purpose of defeating the treaty. "That is as false as though it had come from the mouth of an imp in Hell!" shouted Mr. Morgan. "I do not take orders from the Senator from Illinois. When I want somebody to act as my captain I will get a man with more mental calibre and broader mind!" continued the enraged Senator, to the amazement of his colleagues. Mr. Cullom permitted the Alabama senator to spend his wrath with remarkable composure and then declared that those charged with seeing the treaty succeed proposed that ratification follow. If the Senator from Alabama talked the treaty to death this session he would have an opportunity to attempt a repetition of his tactics in an extra session. Mr. Morgan's attitude is regarded as rendering an extra session of the Senate inevitable but Senator Cullom assures your correspondent that the Panama Canal and the Cuban treaties will be ratified if it becomes necessary to "hold the Senate in extra session until July."

The democrats in the Senate prepared themselves for a long filibuster with a view to forcing a vote on the Littlefield anti trust bill, but the Republican managers promptly defeated their purpose by calling for a vote on Senator Blackburn's motion to consider the Littlefield bill and defeating it 23 to 38. Senator Aldrich, speaking of the action of his party said, "It was so obviously ludicrous to attempt to consider so important and far-reaching a measure as the Littlefield bill in the closing hours of the session that the republicans had no fear that the judgment of the people would not sustain them." The democrats appreciated that the consideration of the bill would be impossible but sought this means of embarrassing the republicans and of making what they believed would constitute campaign material.

Democratic members of the House have held a caucus and resolved to obstruct every measure until adjournment. To meet this filibuster the House will, it is expected, be compelled to remain in continuous session until the 4th of March substituting daily "recesses" for adjournment. Thus every action of the House hereafter will be "as on the legislative day of Feb. 26th." The occasion of the democratic wrath was the unseating of Representative Butler of Missouri in favor of Representative Wagoner of the same district, extensive frauds having been found in the election returns.

Practically all the important appropriation bills are now out of the way and there is no occasion to anticipate an extra session of the entire Congress although an extra session of the Senate is expected.

President Roosevelt has sent to the Senate a forcible message appealing to that body to pass the Philippine tariff bill already passed by the House. The President quotes a long cablegram from Governor Taft setting forth the necessity of affording this assistance to the Philippine industries. A careful canvas of the senate reveals the fact that a majority would be glad to support the bill if given an opportunity to vote for it, but Senators Teller and Patterson, both democrats, from Colorado, declare their intention to talk the measure to death. These gentlemen are afraid that at some future time the Philippine sugar industry may attain proportions which will enable it to compete with their sugar producing constituent and thus rob them of some of the benefits of the Dingley Tariff schedules.

The President and his Secretary of the Navy are deeply concerned over the action of the Senate in amending the Naval appropriation bill to provide for 12,000 ton battle ships and 9,500 cruisers, the House having authorized 16,000 ton battle ships and 14,500 ton cruisers. On the same day that the Senate took this action the Naval Board on Construction rendered a unanimous opinion to Secretary Moody that it would be "harmful retrogression to build battleships of less than 16,000 tons displacement and cruisers of less than 14,500 tons displacement." The Naval board says that a change to the smaller type of vessels will necessitate much unnecessary expense and delay as it will mean the changing of plans, patterns, etc., and when the ships are built they will fail to give satisfaction or add to the strength of the Navy on lines commensurate with the expense involved. The President is thoroughly interested in the development of the Navy and is much disappointed at the action of the Senate committee.

THE PLAYHOUSE.

MAJESTIC THEATRE, Mar. 9.—"The Storke."

TREMONT THEATRE, Mar. 9.—"The Crisis."

KEITH'S THEATRE, Mar. 9.—Vaudeville.

MUSIC HALL, Mar. 9.—"M'liss."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE, Mar. 9.—"Over Niagara Falls."

Tremont Theatre—Next Monday evening James K. Hackett will begin a return engagement at the Tremont Theatre, in Winston Churchill's play, "The Crisis." The first visit of the popular actor to the Tremont some two months ago, was notable for breaking the record of the Theatre for receipts at regular prices, for at each performance every seat and every inch of standing room was occupied, and hundreds of would-be auditors were turned away. While part of this really phenomenal success was due to the high esteem in which Mr. Hackett is held by Boston playgoers, and to the favor which the famous novel has gained throughout a wide circle of eager readers, a great deal of credit must be given to the admirable manner in which Mr. Hackett has presented the play, and the interesting material Mr. Churchill has supplied for him to handle. For while curiosity and friendly feeling may call forth a certain consideration, only highly satisfactory performances continue to crowd the theatre.

JAMES K. HACKETT, in "The Crisis" at the Tremont Theatre.

Keith's Theatre—Among the attractions booked at Keith's for the week of March 9 are the following: Robert Hillard and company, in the favorite actor-author's dramatization of the charming Richard Harding Davis's story, "Her First Appearance," which he has renamed "The Little Girl"; Alice Raymond and John Kurkamp, in high class vocal and instrumental specialties; John Donahue and Mattie Nivols, eccentric comedians and dancers; Rio brothers, a trio of wonderful acrobats; Billy Gould, a singing comedian, of several seasons associated with the best musical comedies produced in New York; Martini and Maximilian, a skillful sleight-of-hand performer and his comedy assistant; Mark Sullivan, a popular comedian and clever mimic of other stage celebrities; Cooper and Bailey, "real Coon" singers and dancers; Ramza and Arno, comedy acrobats, and the DeMuths, illustrators of ballroom dances. It is the sort of entertainment that even the most rigid observers of Lent might witness without compromising themselves.

Boston Grand Opera House—Majestic Niagara, Empress of the World's Cataracts with its awe inspiring, imposing torrents of water, its rushing, swirling, twisting, terrifying rapids has been conquered, and by a woman. By making a successful descent of the Falls Anne Edson Taylor accomplished a feat that has always been considered impossible and fatal. Her success has inspired Jos. Le Brant, the successful dramatist with the idea of his latest melodrama, "Over Niagara Falls" which will be on view at the Boston Grand Opera House next week. The scenic and electrical effects are most elaborate and plentiful. The scene showing the Falls by moonlight in a revelation in the scenic artists world. There will be the usual matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Broken Glass Thrown in Streets

Much complaint has been heard of late concerning the practice of scattering broken glass in the public streets. Said a well known citizen to a Graphic representative the other day: "There is nothing more contemptible than this habit, some people have of throwing pieces of broken glass in the highway. I think it is outrageous. The greatest offenders, I find, are milkmen. Some of them, thoughtlessly perhaps, upon looking over the empty glass jars they gather at different houses, find them unfit for further use and throw them away. The street is the handiest place and the careless driver never thinks of what he is doing until the damage is done. What's the use of my enumerating the dangers. Everybody knows them as well as I do. I feel that something must be done and am going to undertake some prosecuting on my own account if the proper authorities don't do their part or the milkmen discontinue."

Boston Music Hall—The line of high class attractions which Manager Stair and Wilbur are presenting at the Boston Music Hall continue to draw large audiences to that attractive theatre and at both the daily matinees and the evening performances the theatre is usually crowded, while at the Sunday evening concert it is almost impossible to find available standing room. For the week commencing next Monday afternoon Messrs. Stair and Wilbur have booked Spencer and Aborn's big revival of "M'liss," a dramatization of Bret Harte's celebrated story of the same name and made famous some years ago by the lamented Annie Pixley. The managers of "M'liss" have made their production a handsome and effective one in every detail. The scenes are said to be very beautiful, as the scenic artists had something more than the ordinary to work from the beautiful mountain section of California.

TELEPHONE NO. 77-3.

THE GRAPHIC is printed and mailed
Friday afternoons, and is for sale at all Newstands in the Newtons, and at the South Union Station, Boston.All communications must be accompanied with the name of the writer, and unpublished communications cannot be returned by mail unless stamps are enclosed.Notices of all local entertainments to which admission fee is charged must be paid for at regular rates, 25 cents per line in the reading matter, or $1.00 per line in the advertising columns.The claim of Chief of Police Tar-box for reimbursement of his expenses in the recent police investigation was received with divided sentiments in the city. One faction believes that the chief is entirely within his rights in asking that his expenses be paid, while another states that it is the height of presumption on the part of the Chief.As a matter of fact it is doubtful if there is a legal liability on the part of the city in this particular case. The hearing was not one recognized by the city charter, and is not analogous to the Gray case in Cambridge. An open investigation was held by the mayor as the most satisfactory way to reach the public, and it is doubtful if he was given any new information on the matters brought out in the investigation.The Chief should also, have consulted the mayor in the first place, before engaging counsel, had he intended to ask the city to bear the expense of the investigation, and thus had the question raised before instead of after the trial.So much for the technical side. As a matter of fact we believe that there is considerable justice in the Chief's claim. As a public officer he naturally must say and do things which will offend a part of the community. If the precedent is once established that the Chief of Police or any other city official must bear the expense of defending themselves from the attack of enemies, what is to prevent continual and systematic efforts being made by irresponsible citizens to require such expenditures to be made.The personality of the Chief of Police ought not to affect a candid judgment of the matter as the principle is the same as it would be if it was the Chief of Fire Department or the Water Commissioner.Briefly summarized, the Chief cannot technically claim reimbursement, as the hearing was not a matter in which the city had a legal interest, and he was also lame in not demanding counsel before the investigation. On the other hand, the investigation cleared the air of many unpleasant rumors, as nothing else could have done, and as an act of justice the city should protect its officials from unjust and frivolous charges.A recent number of the Review and Record has the following sound criticism of a contemporary:A Newton newspaper appears to regard with complacency and satisfaction the proposal of outside parties to buy the stock of the N. & W. Gas Light Co. at a large advance over any previous quotations of the shares. The editor does not apparently see any reason why consumers should object to a big increase of the capital stock of a company on which dividends are to be paid, even although the increase is represented by nothing in the way of new property or assets of any kind. It may be true that the actual authorized capital is not to be increased but those who pay $300 a share for the stock will certainly expect to get more in the way of dividends than would or at least ought to be, expected by those who hold the shares at a much lower figure.The Review and Record is certainly right in taking this view of the matter and the consumers of gas would realize that definite action should be taken immediately towards petitioning the gas and electric light commissioners for a reduction in the price of gas. Now is the time to strike if the right kind of an impression is to be made.We are glad to state that there are strong indications that steps will soon be taken to relieve the congestion in Nonantum square.

POINTS ABOUT TURTLES.

They Are Not So Much Like One Another as Many People Think.In moist places in the fields and meadows may be found the wood turtles, a sober sort of turtle of a brown or reddish brown color above, the shell having a ridge in its middle along the back, says Nature Study. Each plate of the shell underneath has a black blotch.In mud holes and in small ponds, often resting on a log or stone above the water, one may almost always find the painted turtle, which has the margin of the shell marked red, while the shell underneath is yellow. These turtles are not so easily captured as the wood turtles, for they are rather timid and often slip into the water when approached, but with patience and ingenuity they can be outwitted at last and one secured for examination.It will be rare good fortune to find a turtle at a meal and see him hold his food, sometimes with one fore foot, sometimes with the other, but never with both at once, as cats and dogs often do.After watching him for awhile try to find whether he always draws his tail in on the same side of his box house.
Experiment with the same turtle over and over; then sometimes try other turtles in the same way and find out for yourself whether turtles vary in this matter of hiding away their tails. This is more important than you can imagine. If all the animals and plants of the same sort were always the same there would never be any change in the living world.Count the toes on the fore feet and on the hind feet, noticing whether there are the same number all around.
As you find other turtles, particularly in different parts of the country, if you travel about, or in such museums as you can visit, see what differences you can find in this matter of the number and arrangement of turtles' toes. It is not so silly as it may appear to some people. Notice also that some turtles have webbed feet, to enable them to swim the better.Manage in some way to open the turtle's mouth and find whether it has teeth, or only hard and rather sharp cutting edges along the jaws. Touch the eyes gently with a small stick and see the turtle draw a thin skin over them. This is the third eyelid, the same as in hens, pigeons and birds generally.
Notice that the feet and tail are covered with scales; then some time examine the foot of a hen or pigeon and see that they are scaly also. In this matter of the third eyelid and the scales
the birds and the turtles have features in common. Perhaps some time you will learn how it happened and will find it a very interesting story.—New York Tribune.

Appropriating a Crest.

There is a restaurant keeper with a new and capacious place on the upper west side about whom a story is going the rounds. This "mine host" makes no secret of the fact that when he arrived in America as a youth he had more fingers and toes than dollars and that it is due to his own industry that he now can command his little army of cooks, waiters and other help. When he opened an addition to his rooms recently, his friends were surprised to see a crest emblazoned conspicuously on various parts of the wall. The glass ware also bears the crest."I say, Pat," said a friend recently,
"where did you get that crest?"
"That belonged to a king of my name in Ireland," was the reply.
"And I suppose you were one of the royal family?"
"Well, I don't know," was the confidential reply. "I looked it up in the Astor Library. There were several hundred years to account for, but I thought I'd take a chance."—New York Times.

Finding More Material.

"How large is your Mammoth cave?"
asked the foreign tourist.
"Nobody knows exactly," said the native. "It's so large, though, and people get lost in it so easily, that when a man is about to explore it he makes his will and wishes his weeping friends goodbye.""Most astonishing! I never heard that before!"
"Oh, well, of course, it isn't quite so bad as that. I was only joking!"
[Entry in foreign tourist's notebook:
"Another curious custom among Americans is that when they tell an amazing lie they call it a joke."—Chicago Tribune.

True Mercy.

"Prisoner," said the judge, "you are convicted of bigamy, of having married two wives. Have you any plea for mercy before the sentence of the court is imposed on you?"
"Yes, judge," said the prisoner. "Give me as big a sentence in jail as you can.""What?"
"I want to keep out of the clutches of those two wives as long as I can, and a long jail sentence will be true mercy."
—Baltimore Herald.

Charity.

Charity itself commands us, where we know no ill, to think well of all.
But friendship, that always goes a pitch higher, gives a man a peculiar right and claim to the good opinion of his friend.Great men should think of opportunity and not of time. Time is the excuse of feeble minded and puzzled spirits.—DIsraeli.

CURIOUS HAPPENINGS
IN MAN'S STOMACH.

John Dugan, a plumber of Cazenovia, New York, has had a strange experience and his rescue from a dangerous condition is thankfully appreciated. For years he was troubled with chronic constipation so badly that the bowels never acted freely and naturally. An X-Ray examination showed that the intestines were practically tied in knots, probably as the result of the powerful purgatives he had taken. His physician prescribed VITONIC TONIC with a view to strengthening the stomach so as to enable it to correct, by inducing force, natural action of the bowels, the strange position of the intestines. The result was as desired. Mr. Dugan's predicament was relieved and he was made a man of perfect health. VITONIC TONIC is not a purgative or even a laxative, but it cures constipation by inducing a stomach action that secretes the proper juices to loosen the waste matter, promoting normal and natural movements. VITONIC TONIC is sold by one reliable and reputable druggist in every town and city in the land. Fred R. Durgin, Druggist, Newtonville, sell it for 75 cents per large bottle.

Weeks, mayor, for legislation to compensate Newton for damages from Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board; also in House Bill No. 561, the petition of John W. Weeks, mayor, for legislation to prevent the laying of pipes, conduits and other apparatus in the City of Newton by the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board without the approval of the Mayor of said city, at a session, No. 486 State House, on Thursday, March 12, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

A RAZOR'S EDGE.

Minute Teeth, Like Those of a Saw, Make Its Keenness.

The edge of a razor consists of innumerable points or "teeth," which if the razor is of good material follow each other throughout its whole length with great order and clearness. The unbroken regularity of these minute "teeth" goes to make up the blade's excessive keenness. The edge acts upon the beard not so much by the direct application of weight or force as it does by a slight "sawing" movement, which causes the successive "teeth" to act rapidly on one certain part of the hairy growth. The best razors, according to the microscopists, have the teeth of their edges set as regularly as those of a perfectly saw.

This explains the magic effect of hot water on the razor's blade—the act of dipping it thoroughly cleansing the teeth of any greasy or dirty substance with which they may have been clogged. Barbers often claim that razors "get tired" of shaving and that they will be all right after awhile if permitted to take a rest. When in this "tired" condition a microscopic examination of the edge shows that constant stropping by the same person has caused the teeth or fibers of the edge to all arrange themselves in one direction. A month of disuse causes these fine particles to rearrange themselves so that they again present the heterogeneous saw toothed edge. After this little recreation each particle of the fine edge is up and ready to support his fellow, and it again takes some time to spoil the grain of the blade.

Verdi Was Right.

When Verdi was putting the last touches to "Il Trovatore," he was visited in his study by a privileged friend, who was one of the ablest living musicians and critics. He was permitted to examine the score and run over the "Anvil Chorus" on the pianoforte. "What do you think of that?" asked Verdi. "Trash!" responded the connoisseur. Verdi rubbed his hands and chuckled. "Now look at this," he said. "Rubbish!" said the other, rolling a cigarette. The composer rose and embraced him with a burst of joy. "What do you mean?" asked the critic. "My dear friend," cried Verdi, "I have been making a popular opera. In it I resolved to please everybody except the purists, the great judges, the classicists like you. Had I pleased you I should have pleased no one else. What you say assures me of success. In three months 'Il Trovatore' will be sung and roared and whistled and barrel organed all over Italy." And so it proved.

A Safe Proceeding.

Lord Lyons, English minister at Washington during the civil war and afterward ambassador to France, was a diplomatist to the core. He was exceedingly tactful in action and had the rare art of keeping his own counsel.

When Sir Edward Blount called upon him one day at the embassy in Paris he found that a well known journalist had preceded him. The visitor was laying down the law in a loud tone, and when, after his departure, Sir Edward was received, he took the liberty of saying:

"May I be allowed to ask if it is quite wise to discuss state secrets in such a loud tone? I heard every word that was said, my lord, as I sat in the ante-room."

"Ah!" said Lord Lyons. "But even then you could not hear what I said, for I said nothing."—Youth's Companion.

The Cherokees and Polytheism.

The Cherokee Indian was originally a polytheist. To him the spirit world was only a shadowy counterpart of this one. He had no great spirit, no happy hunting ground, no heaven, no hell—all of which ideas were first introduced to the American aborigines by Christian missionaries. Consequently death had for him no terrors, and he awaited the inevitable end with no anxiety as to the future. All his prayers were for temporal and tangible blessings—for health, for long life, for success in the chase, in fishing, in war and in love, for good crops, for protection and for revenge.

Dreams Explained.

"Dreams," says an eminent lecturer on theosophy, "consist of recollections of the combined impressions received and workings of the physical and astral minds. The soul and subconsciousness are independently active, and it is the confusion arising from the confounding of the thoughts of the soul with the exaggerated interpretation of impressions received by subconsciousness which makes it so often impossible to remember dreams."

Softer.

"I have no doubt you have heard some stories to my discredit," he said. "I don't like to put it in that way," she quietly replied.

"How then?" he hopefully asked. "I have never heard any stories to your credit," said she.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Precocious Youth.

"Papa—dear papa—Papa, when I grow up may I get married?" "Papa—My son, I regret to see you anticipate trouble so early in life."—Chicago News.

One on the Minister.

Rev. Tubthumper—I've been preaching this morning to a congregation of asses. Lfy, Sugarstick—Yes; I noticed you called them "beloved brethren."—Ally Sloper.

INDIANS TO VOTE.

But White Women Must Remain the Political Inferiors of the Red Men.

It seems that a congress is to be called by the Rosebud agency in South Dakota to arrange for concerted action to secure for all male Indians the right of suffrage.

Ida Husted Harper in commenting upon this in the New York Sun says: "There is just one little fragment of male bipeds in the United States that is not enfranchised, and congress has been saying to them for years, 'Come, wash off your paint and a few other things, exchange your blanket for a pair of trousers, and we will make you at once a political sovereign.' But the noble redskin much prefers his 'tribal relations' and refuses to be bought off. Now the proposition is to thrust the ballot upon him, tribe or no tribe. It seems such a terrible degradation for any of the male species to be disfranchised."

"But why this great anxiety to enfranchise the Indians? Why not wait till the majority of them demand it? Whenever a body of educated, law abiding women ask for the suffrage they are invariably commanded to go away back and sit down and wait till the majority of the 15,000,000 adults of their sex join in the request. Where is the equity in requiring this in the case of women and forcing the ballot upon the male Indians when not even a minority want it? 'But,' we are told, 'the Indians will value the right after they have exercised it.' Is it not logical to think white women will do the same? Or is there some fine, noble sense of appreciation in an Indian man which is beyond the capacity of a white woman?"

"In 1890 a woman suffrage amendment was submitted to the voters in South Dakota and at the same time one to enfranchise the male Indians. Miss Anthony, Mrs. Chapman Catt, the Rev. Anna Shaw and other national women made a campaign in the interest of the first measure. The politicians took care of the latter. When the Republican state convention met in Mitchell, these ladies, with a number of prominent South Dakota women, requested seats on the floor of the convention, but were refused. As soon as it opened a member stated that a delegation was waiting outside which would probably soon represent 5,000 votes. It was voted by acclamation to send a committee to bring it in. The committee returned, accompanied by three or four big Indians in blankets and moccasins, with their hair braided down their backs with cotton strings.

"Both amendments failed, that for woman suffrage receiving an affirmative vote of 35 per cent, that for male Indian suffrage 45 per cent. While these women were going over the state making their pleas the Indians were holding one of the biggest and longest ghost dances on record. But of the two proposed classes of voters Dakota men preferred the latter, evidently thinking they would be more of a credit to the young and ambitious state."

THE LAW'S INJUSTICE.

Ignorant, Degraded Men Preferred to Women of Refinement.

All women, no matter how well born, how well educated, how intelligent, how rich, how serviceable to the state, are the political inferiors of all men, no matter how base born, how poverty stricken, how ignorant, how vicious, how brutal. The pauper in the almshouse may vote; the lady who devotes herself to getting that almshouse made habitable may not. The tramp who begs cold victuals in the kitchen may vote; the heiress who feeds him and endows a university may not. Communities are agitated and legislatures convulsed to devise means to secure the right of suffrage to the illiterate voter, and the writers, journalists, physicians, teachers, the wives and daughters and companions of the best educated men in the state are left in silence, blotted out, swamped, obliterated, behind this cloud of often besotted ignorance. Today the immigrants pouring in through the open gates of our seaport towns, the Indian when settled in severalty, the negro hardly emancipated from the degradation of 200 years of slavery, may all share in the sovereignty of the state. The white woman—the American woman, the woman in whose veins runs the blood of those heroic colonists who founded our country, of those women who helped to sustain the courage of their husbands in the revolution, the woman who may have given the flower of her youth and health in the service of our civil war—this woman is excluded. Today women constitute the only class of sane people excluded from the franchise, the only class deprived of political representation except the tribal Indians and the Chinese.

MARY PUTNAM JACOBI.

One Woman With a Vote.

Mrs. Chester E. Coulter, president of the Utah State Federation of Women's Clubs, has just been elected a member of the lower house of the state legislature by the Republicans of Weber county. Mrs. Coulter is a graduate of the law department of the University of Michigan. She is described as a woman of broad culture and refinement, greatly interested in educational and industrial questions and fully alive to the best interests of her adopted state.

Women's Votes Intelligent.

Professor L. F. Henderson of Idaho university said at a public meeting in Boston recently that woman suffrage in his state had been so free from any objectionable features it had converted the majority of men who were formerly bitterly opposed and, what was still better, had converted the majority of the women and that the intelligent women take more interest in suffrage than the ignorant ones.

SOME QUAINI ENGLISH.

Portuguese Idea of the Language Is a Book of "Learning."

A book as amusing as it is rare is in the library of a Wissahickon student. The work is called "O Nova Guia da Conversacao." It is supposed to instruct the Portuguese in English conversation, and the following, a dialogue headed "For to Ride a Horse," is the kind of English conversation it supplies:

"Here is a horse who have a bad looks. Give me another; I will not that. He not all know to march, he is pury. He is founnder. Don't you are ashamed to give me a Jade as like? He is und-shoed, he is with nails up; it want to lead to the farrier."

An anecdote in the book is: "A day came a man to consult this philosopher for to know at o'clock it was one to eat. 'If thou art rich, told him eat when you shall wish; if you are poor, when you may do.'"

In the preface the most elegant paragraph is the following: "We expect then, who the little book (for the care what we wrote him, and for her typographical correction) that may be worth the acceptance of the studious persons, and especially of the youth, at which we dedicate him particularly."

The authors of this strange volume are Jose da Fonseca and Pedro Carolino. It would be interesting to know where Pedro and Jose "learned" English.—Philadelphia Record.

Satisfied His Curiosity.

The curiosity of the natives of wild countries as to everything belonging to the traveler often leads to amusing situations. Mr. J. W. Wells tells in "Three Thousand Miles Through Brazil" of his visit to one settlement where the only shopkeeper of the place proved very inquisitive. He was a frequent visitor and would carefully examine the few belongings of the traveler. His curiosity was finally punished in a very funny manner.

On one of his visits, writes Mr. Wells, he found my bottle of spirits of ammonia on the table, and, seeing it was something he had not hitherto inspected, he naturally laid hold of it and asked of me, "What is this?" "Only a medicine," I replied, and with a perhaps unworthy satisfaction I watched him hold it up to the light, look at it all round and finally remove the glass stopper and then take a good sniff.

I had to rush forward to save my precious ammonia, as he staggered and gasped for breath and ejaculated, "I am dying!" By dint of much snipping of his back and dousing of cold water he quickly recovered, but nevertheless he had touch any of my things.

After Dinner Oratory.

The fake humorous speaker has an easier career than even the fake eloquent speaker. Yet at any given dinner the orator who passes out mere elocution to his hearers has a success almost as instant and splendid as his clowning brother. It is amazing what things people will applaud when they have the courage of each other's ineptitude. They will listen after dinner to anything but reason. They prefer also the old speaker to new ones; they like the familiar taps of humor, of eloquence. If they have tasted the brew before, they know what they are going to get. The note of their mood is tolerance, but tolerance of the accustomed, the expected; not tolerance of the novel, the surprising. They wish to be at rest, and what taxes their minds molests their intellectual repose. They do not wish to climb any great heights to reach the level of the orator.—W. D. Howells in Harper's.

A Queer Relic.

In University college, London, is a singular object that is preserved carefully in a remote gallery inside a glass case, which again is contained in a huge wooden cupboard, the doors of which are locked and the keys in safe custody. The relic which is thus so zealously guarded is described in some notes on the history of the college as the "skeleton" of Jeremy Bentham, "clad in the garments in which he lived," while his head only is stated to have been "mummified." It has always been understood that Bentham's body was embalmed, and in that case it cannot be his mere skeleton which is reposing there under lock and key.

Pat Balanced It.

An Irish soldier attending school, which is compulsory when starting till after an examination has taken place, had great difficulty in bringing a sum to the correct answer.

"You are a shilling out, Magee," said the inspector, "therefore you have failed again."

"Och," said Pat, taking a shilling from his pocket, "take this, and it'll make the sum right. Hurroo! Succeeded at last!"—Spare Moments.

Weather a Dangerous Topic.

Newitt—Well, there's one thing about the weather—it's always a safe topic of conversation.

Borroughs—I thought it was today when I met Lendrum, but when I started to speak of it he said, "Yes, it's unsettled, and that reminds me of that note of yours."—Philadelphia Press.

Getting Even.

Mrs. von Blumer—We must have the Bigglesby to dinner. We owe them one. Von Blumer—Of course. We passed an awful dull evening there, and it is nothing more than right that they should pass one here.—Brooklyn Life.

Making It Easy.

"You never allow yourself to read a book until you have read a review of it? Why is that?" "Well, I prefer to use only predigested mental food."

There has all along been a well grounded confidence in the investment world that things are shaping themselves out well; that wage controversies are to be amicably compromised, that the Aldrich bill would be passed, to the great benefit of our haphazard currency system, that greater ease in money is but a question of time, and that the extensive corporate borrowings are simply an indication of how really permanent and deep is our present prosperity when such measures must be taken to serve its future requirements.

There are no fundamental factors working against the market. The only one that could be plausibly urged would be that it had been surfeited with success and stood in danger of excess; but in the past year or two there has always come at the psychological moment a vigorous purging from one source or another and rejuvenated it for further flights. With our industrial welfare unimpaired as it now appears, there is no reason why every current day of market weakness should not furnish golden opportunities to the investor.—Corey, Milliken & Co.

Foul Air in Houses.

During the winter months all houses are more or less filled with foul air, or air from which the "Life" has been taken by heating. This should be remedied by doing all cleaning throughout the house with Cabot's SULPHO-NAPHTHOL in the water instead of soap. When cleaning is not in progress a solution of SULPHO-NAPHTHOL left to stand in a cup, saucer or other vessel a cloth wrung out in a solution and suspended, or spraying a solution of SULPHO-NAPHTHOL about the room with an atomizer, will give splendid results. SULPHO-NAPHTHOL is a powerful destroyer of germ life, yet pleasant and safe to use for all such purposes.

"Don't Know How I Got Such a Cold"

Most of us have heard this expression many times.

Did you ever notice that the Don't know how I got it cold is a bad one to get over? That before you are through with the hoarseness, the cough, the "tight feeling," the general discomfort, and the out of sorts sensations, you are apt to have another such cold, and so on until it hangs on for weeks?

These colds mean that your system is out of gear. They usually precede serious diseases like consumption, bronchitis. They are dangerous.

We have found a remedy for all sorts of colds, coughs, that is not a so-called cough-cure. It does not stupefy with opium, nor fill the system with vicious drugs.

It is Vinol. We are perfectly willing to tell any inquirers at our store what it is made of and how we came to take hold of it.

It certainly does the work. Old coughs go off like magic. It even relieves people far gone in consumption. People right in town have proved it. We sell it subject to guarantee—money back if it doesn't help you. Isn't it foolish to put the matter off?

LITERARY NOTES.

General Charles King's latest novel, "A Daughter of the Sioux," a tale of the Indian frontier illustrations by Frederic Remington and Edwin Willard Deming. Cover design by Mortimer Thain will be published March 15. It is now several years since General King has written a book based on the stirring scenes of the Far Western Plains, among which he passed so many years of his active military life. Critics who have read the advance sheets hail this new story with great interest and enthusiasm claiming for it the true ring and action of his earlier books and comparing more than favorably with them. It is certain that his host of oldtime readers are still thoroughly appreciative, as witnessed by the large number of copies already sold before publication. Its literary merit is greatly enhanced by the talent employed in its artistic embellishment, and it is seldom one title page contains such a trio of illustrious names as King Remington Deming. ## BEET SUGAR.

It Was Born of France's Isolation During the Napoleonic Wars.

Sugar as an article of food was not known to the ancients. Mankind has always exhibited the greatest fondness for sweets, and from the earliest times the demand was supplied by honey.

The royal psalmist sets up honey and the honeycomb as the highest standard of material sweetness. A land flowing with milk and honey was the picture drawn by the most ancient poets to describe an earthly paradise. Romans of the last days of the republic, and subsequently of the time of the empire, who were at the same time the most luxurious epicures and the grossest feeders the world ever knew and spared neither money nor exertion to secure every delicacy possible for their tables, had no knowledge of sugar, but robbed the bees to obtain sweets for their famous honey cakes and other confectionery.

Sugar was made in India and Arabia in the earliest times, but it was not brought into Europe until the invasions of the Mohammedans into the countries around the Mediterranean sea, in the seventeenth century. The Moors cultivated the cane in the countries of north Africa, and they introduced it into Spain. The Spaniards, about 1510, planted sugar canes in their West Indian possessions, whence it spread through Spanish America and into the French province of Louisiana.

The cane was the original source of sugar, and so remained up to the time of the Napoleonic wars in Europe. The ports of France were so closely blockaded by the British fleets that it was impossible to secure sugar from any tropical countries, and Napoleon assembled the chemists in France and commissioned them to discover some means of making sugar out of material found in the country, at the same time offering a large reward. This proceeding resulted in the production of sugar from the beet.—New Orleans Picayune.

DAVID GARRICK.

The Great Actor's Art and His Wife's Beloved Feelings.

Mrs. Garrick's admiration of her husband's dramatic talents was intense, and on his great nights she would hang over her box, next the stage, in rapturous delight. The one flaw in her idol, she claimed, was a taste for low life, for which she blamed him greatly, insisting that he loved better to play scrub to a low lived audience than one of his superior characters before an audience of taste.

On one particular occasion she was in her box in the theater when Garrick's impersonation of Richard III. was applauded to the echo. In that day a farce followed the tragedy of the evening, and as Mrs. Garrick rose to leave before her husband came to the box to say he had some business in the greenroom which would detain him, so most unwillingly the lady was obliged to acquiesce and remain through the closing entertainment.

This proved to be a comical series of blundering adventures which had been a countryman who had left his farm to see London and on his return gave his neighbors an account of the wonders he had met.

This characterization was received with such peals of applause that Mrs. Garrick, ever zealous of her husband's fame, began to think it rivalled those lately lavished on Richard III. Her feelings were nearly worked up to fever heat when she was attracted by the frantic efforts of her little spaniel dog to overleap the balcony that separated him from the stage, when she immediately became aware of the truth that the actor was Garrick and exclaimed, "Strange that a dog should know his master when the woman who loved him best in the world could not pierce his disguise."

What the buffalo was to the Indian the reindeer is to the Lapps. At the present day the wealth of a Lapp is calculated in reindeer. Thus, when the people speak of a man's estate they say, "He is worth so many deer."

Those who have only fifty or sixty head are poor servants, and their deer are put with those of their "betters." To have any kind of social standing in Lapland one should possess at least 500 of these animals. A Lapp is considered well off when he is the happy owner of not less than 1,000 reindeer.

A Couple of Bulls.

In General Moore's command was an Irish soldier who, having been asked if the Hollanders were a hospitable people, immediately replied: "They are that; too much so. Ol was in the hospital all the time Ol was there."

This criticism is quite on a par with that of the Englishman who objected to the French because he said the stupid idiots couldn't understand their own language when he spoke it to them.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

Boston, March 4.

One is embarrassed in endeavoring to write concerning the present General Court, from the fact that it is such a hard working body that thus far there has been very little time for vocal pyrotechnics and therefore the number of matters which can be discussed, which have a picturesque element, are comparatively few. The fact is that this Legislature is an every day, hard working, faithful body of men and although there is doubtless latent oratorical talent which has not yet shown itself, it is not more modest than are a number of the members, who have come up year after year and demonstrated their ability, but who have been remarkably quiet thus far this year. Representative Dana is a marked illustration of this idea. In other years he has taken a very active part in the discussions, and undoubtedly is as ready to do so now as ever, but few occasions for him to act have thus far presented themselves. The Senate holds its sessions day after day with hardly a word of debate on any subject. In this connection it should be remarked that the Senate of 1903, has a presiding officer who is eclipsing all records in point of ability to carry through business rapidly and accurately. Before President Jones assumed the chair it was understood that there was no more reliable member than he, but his style of oratory, while convincing, and sometimes florid, was always moderate, so that it was assumed that expedition would not be a strong point with him as president. But he has cut off the frills here and there, has found ways of bunching motions without curtailing the rights of the members as to particular questions, and has developed a rapid vocal delivery when going through the calendar that saves many precious moments of time. The senators are naturally delighted with their new president.

Nearly all the matters that came into the General Court prior to February 1st have now either been heard or have been assigned for hearings. The committee on Cities has not as yet reported on the petition of the mayor of Newton that he may have veto power over expenditures by the school committee.

The committee on Roads and Bridges is still waiting for light on three bills on bridges over the Charles River between Newton and Wellesley, Watertown and Weston. On Thursday of last week there was an attempt to have a hearing on the Weston bridge, but it was postponed to some future date. The committees on Metropolitan Affairs and Water Supply, sitting jointly, will give hearings on Thursday of next week on the petition of the mayor of Newton that the city may be excluded from the metropolitan water district until it takes water from the system, to compensate the city for damages through the works of the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board, and that no future work be done in the city by the board without the approval of the mayor. This committee will give a hearing on Friday of this week on the Langford petition for the completion of the takings along the banks of the Charles River from Newton Upper Falls to Mother Brook, and on March 18, two weeks hence will take up the petition of Barker of New York, in the State of New York, without giving a surety on his bond.

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased to Lincoln Barker of New York, in the State of New York, without giving a surety on his bond.

And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Newton Graphic, a newspaper published in Newton, the last publication to be on or before the day of the hearing, and by mailing, postpaid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, CHARLES J. McINTYRE, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twenty-fourth day of February in the year one thousand nine hundred and three.

A RAILROAD BEAUTIFUL

An Interesting Article Descriptive of the Newton Circuit Line.

COMPLIMENTS TO MR. RICHARDSON'S WORK AS A LANDSCAPE GARDENER BY CHAS. MULFORD ROBINSON.

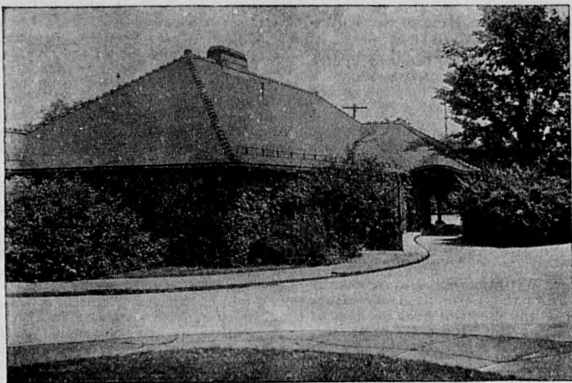

That the "railroad beautiful," where it traverses a great city and its suburbs, should be a goal, considered and worked for by sane business men who have invested in the "soulless corporation," would seem to be a dream of the faddist or the theorist's whimsical claim. Not that railroads are beyond the need of beautifying, nor that their black and cinderly course is hopelessly ugly; but that railroads, with their strictly utilitarian purpose and common ugliness seem naturally at the antithesis of esthetic endeavor. And yet the

had a strong natural interest in a project for railroad gardening. He saw at once the importance of working for a desirable distant end instead of expending energy upon a more showy but less valuable immediate accomplishment. Through his interest the possibility of improving the aspect of the grounds of all the stations on the road, especially of all the suburban stations, was brought before the full board of directors. It was represented as an end desirable not merely for its own sake but for its probable value to the railroad by its tendency to bring the city residents into the suburbs. Circumstances conspired to make the opportunity exceptional. Not only claims, are the station gardens themselves, where the shrubs are grown thickly and transplanted as necessity arises. There is no expense for showy summer vegetation and for a brilliant carpet gardening of short-lived flowers, the effect of color and picturesque grouping being obtained far more economically and far better by massing shrubs and plants and making use of perennials. In this respect the gardens of the Boston and Albany road differ from those of almost every other railroad that attempts to beautify station grounds—and differ, it must be said, for the better. On the one hand, the decorative effect is far more lasting, continuing throughout the year; on with the perfume of wild roses, which, in orderly disorder, climbed the banks on either side. There were few of the appurtenances of a railroad. The very telegraph poles were so hidden in the shrubbery that they were scarcely noticeable, and the thought came here, as it was subsequently to do often in the tour, that if the time should come when electricity could be profitably used on this Circuit division, no small part of the business that the trolleys have stolen from the railroad may be won back, not so much by the better time which the distinct and unbroken right of way can afford, as by the surpassing beauty of the long flower-bordered course.

Two things only demanded special criticism here; and because they were found repeatedly, at station after station, they may be noted. First, the unshaded condition of the platform; second, the lighting apparatus. As to the first, the overhanging eaves of the little station building doubtless offer all the shade that is required by waiting passengers, but how much pleasanter the platform might soon be made if one or two large trees were induced to hang over it. Trees, indeed, are matters of slow growth and long waiting; but the theory of all the planting has wisely been for the desirable rather than the speedy, at whatever cost of patience. The lighting apparatus, an electric globe on the end of a long curved arm of iron which is fastened to a wooden post is about as uncouth as could well be planned. You would say, looking at the pretty station and its attractive grounds, that the zeal, even the interest, of effort to improve esthetically the appearance of the railroad's right of way and to beautify stations and their surroundings, has made almost as rapid a progress with us in recent years as have the forward striding efforts in city and town improvement. Instead of a faddist's dream or the whimsical claim of the theorist, the purpose to beautify the railroad is a matter of common observation and knowledge, the principal systems of the country now having their landscape architect as certainly as their roadmaster.

A pioneer in the work was the Boston and Albany road, and the story of the beginning is of not a little interest. The Pennsylvania and Old Colony systems, indeed, began the task of beautifying their station surroundings at about the same time, but the Old Colony has not carried the matter very far, and the Pennsylvania has adopted a more conventional and less excellent plan, while of all the roads in the country the Boston and Albany, by the degree to which it has developed the project, on the so-called Newton Circuit—a short stretch of road that makes a round of Boston's pretty western suburbs, touching at twenty-one stations before the terminal is reached again—offers the most complete and perfect object lesson available of what "the railroad beautiful" may be. The opportunity was an unusually good one, for the stations are close together—often with barely a mile between them—the country is rolling, fertile and picturesque, and the towns have long been remarkable for their beauty and orderliness.

About twenty years ago E. A. Richardson was baggage-master in the little station at Newtonville. He had not had a gardener's training, was the interest and expert knowledge of Prof. Sargent available, but the Newton Circuit was just being opened, and the Auburndale and Chestnut Hill stations, designed by H. H. Richardson, had created a new standard of way-station construction and had given birth to ideals that could not be satisfied with neglected or barren station yards. So, to shorten the story, Frederick Law Olmsted was engaged to prepare plans for the grounds—to make the setting and arrange the planting for Richardson structures (!) and with this assurance of artistic success the Newtonville baggage-master was advanced to the position of superintendent of the department of station gardens, and began to the other hand, it is much less expensive than if greenhouses and a costly winter establishment were required; while, finally, the opportunity for really artistic planting is far better, and is less fraught with pitfalls, than where the sole dependence—or main dependence—is placed on bright-hued flowers and on the eagerness of untrained station-masters to win company prizes. The system gives us a right to expect a higher class of work, even though conditions of cinders, soot, dust and drought still necessitate, as Mr. Richardson put it, "the survival of the toughest" only.

the company had suddenly failed at this point, so that, with the picture almost complete, the effect had been endangered by careless negligence or weary disregard of so small a matter as the lamp-posts. A moment's thought would recall that the department which is responsible for the lamp-posts is not, probably, the same as that which has beautified the station grounds, and that the significance of the striking lapse is only the familiar lesson of so many estates and so many towns that are not harmonious in their complete effect—the necessity of united effort and co-operation in all departments. The same lamp-post was found at the Brookline and many another station, and emphasized the great opportunity which awaits the designer and manufacturer of a post that shall be inexpensive, but correct in its proportions and harmonious in its lines.

The next station beyond Longwood is Brookline, and, being older than the others, it is disappointing. At "the richest town in the world" the series of stone stations is interrupted by a brick structure of earlier date. An extra track here was laden with the always hideous freight cars; and the long station platform made no pretense to other than utilitarian service. But beyond the platform were to be found the usual shrubs and lawn. Reservoir, with the high peak of its station roof, the almost complete concealment of the telegraph poles, the tall trees that lined the top of the bank on one side of the track and the renewed abundance of bridal wreath and wild roses, that were then all about, quickly restored the charm of the road.

But the station at Chestnut Hill, the next stop, is well-nigh the prettiest of all. There is a park-like

LONGWOOD.

Circuit, the first station beyond the city proper is Longwood. The railroad touches it on a curve, and, as usual in the avoidance of grade crossings throughout the suburbs, the tracks are depressed. The slopes of the cut are thickly planted with low-growing shrubs, above which rises picturesquely, in the near distance, the square tower of a church. The low stone station of the Richardson type nestles beside the track in a clearing of lawn; and up and down the line of road, the vista, once the train has passed, is as restful and as peaceful as a country lane all flower-bordered. The day I made the round of the stations, the air was sweet approach, roads and paths winding luxuriously down to the little station building, where a stunning stone arch throws its protecting cover from wind and rain over the carriage drive. The street is not visible from the railroad, and the little park is graded but he loved order and he loved flowers, and though his station is said to have been no worse than the others on the line he set himself the task of making it better. His first encouragement came from an assistant engineer of the road, who furnished him with loam and sod, and then it attracted the attention of the Newtonville people generally, for the contrast, even though mainly of aspiration, was striking at that time of uniformly ugly station yards. Some of these public-spirited townsmen brought the work to the notice of Professor Charles S. Bargent, who, as director of the road and also of the Arnold Arboretum, study in the Arboretum. There, by the terms of its endowment, every tree and shrub which can bear the climate of Massachusetts, must be cultivated, so that there was conveniently offered the deal experiment ground for any scheme of planting in which only native shrubs were desired.

The road now maintains its own nursery of hardy shrubs and plants. Sixty station yards—forty, that is, outside the Newton Circuit—are under careful cultivation; but the most interesting work, because the most compact and the work done under the most favorable circumstances is still that on the Circuit. ## TROLLEY ACCIDENT DUE TO CARELESSNESS

A trolley car accident, which resulted in the death of the motorman, occurred in Waltham shortly before nine o'clock Tuesday morning, when an inward bound express train from Concord struck the forward end of electric car No. 46 of the Newton Street Railway Company. The accident happened at the Moody street crossing of the Fitchburg Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad and the responsibility for it rests with John Carney, the operator in the tower house, who had charge of raising and lowering the gates at the crossing. Only one person, the motorman, Emerson Storer of Waltham, was injured, and he died at the Waltham Hospital at 11.05 o'clock. The forward end of the electric was wrecked and the six or seven passengers, three or four of whom were school children, beside being badly frightened, received a severe shaking up.

The electric car was bound from Waltham to Newton. As it arrived at the crossing the gates were lowered for a shifting engine to pass on its way toward Roberts. As soon as this engine had passed by Carney, forgetting that the express train was due—and by the way, it was late—raised the gates and Carl Curruith, the conductor of the electric car gave the two bells for the car to proceed on its way across the tracks. It had just reached the inward bound tracks when the motorman noticed the express train coming along at a fast rate. Storer applied the brakes as quickly as he could, but before the car could be brought to a stop the express had struck the forward vestibule, smashing it into splinters.

The car was thrown from its tracks and whirled around at right angles with the railroad tracks. Emerson Storer, the motorman, was hurled from the vestibule a distance of fully fifteen feet and one foot was so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. Storer was quickly removed by the police to the hospital.

There was great excitement among the few passengers on the car and they hastened to make an exit as quickly as possible.

Woodland Park

The Progressive Hearts party, which was to have been given at the Woodland Park Hotel on Thursday last, was postponed to Monday, March 9th. By this postponement many of the guests have been able to join who otherwise could not have done so.

Among the arrivals for the week are Mr. F. S. Lewis, Mr. Baldwin Wood, Mr. J. H. Douglass, Mrs. William Sayles, Mr. E. L. Adams and Mr. C. H. Olmstead.

Although golf has not as yet, had its formal opening at the Woodland Park, many of the enthusiasts have been out to look the ground over and an early spring will mean an early opening for the sport here.

The fine weather of the past week has added many names to the list of driving parties.

Financial.

There has naturally been a good deal of disappointment felt in Wall street over the defeat of the Aldrich and other currency reform bills; and the unfavorable light in which this places the monetary situation has been adroitly made use of by the bears to force liquidation by timid security holders.

All is not gloom, however, in the money market. As Secretary Shaw remarks, the very conservatism and caution now bred in the financial mind will largely safeguard against sowing a wind from which a monetary whirlwind might be reaped in the autumn. And in Secretary Shaw himself, as already witnessed some months since, is found the situation's chief bulwark; since he stands ready to do practically most of what the Aldrich bill would have crystallized in the statutes.

Apart from this passing flurry, the very favorable present state of affairs, whose features we have so often rehearsed, is essentially unimpaired, save temporarily for labor troubles of which most work out quickly their own solution. (Corey, Milliken & Co.)

Apprehension regarding the money market has caused a great deal of liquidation, but the bear contingent has helped the declining movement along with short sales wherever a weak spot was discovered. The withdrawal of the Aldrich bill was, of course, an unfavorable factor, but the market has apparently fully discounted the defeat of the measure.

Much is being said just now of the fears of monetary disturbances, but good opinion says that these fears are groundless as every effort will be made by the administration to guard against such, especially so as a presidential election is not very distant. Money rates are firm, but this has generally been the case during the first half of March in past years, but money has always eased up during April and May. While bank reserves are so low, no bull market can be looked for and banks are liable to curtail their loan accounts, and this in itself should allay fears of any serious monetary disturbances. KEITH'S THEATRE, Mar. 16.—Vaudeville.

MUSIC HALL, Mar. 16.—"A Little Outcast."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE, Mar. 16.—"Alphonse and Gaston."

New Majestic Theatre—Droll Richard Carle and his merry flock of songsters have undoubtedly achieved a most pronounced financial and artistic success at the New Majestic Theatre, where the vast audiences that have attended the performances have voted it one of the jolliest of jolly shows seen in Boston for many a day. The production, which enters upon its fifth week next Monday, is most lavish and costly, and the company comprises some of the best known players of the day, all of whom are now prime Boston favorites, especially the large array of singing and dancing girls, the most youthful, graceful and beautiful bevy of femininity that has been corralled in any one organization of recent prominence. Matinees are given every Wednesday and Saturday at the New Majestic.

Keith's Theatre—The latest sensation in the form of "looping the loop" by which, which is the invention of Charles R. Culver of Springfield, will be exhibited at Keith's theatre, Boston, on Monday, March 16, as the feature act of the variety show. Those who have witnessed this latest novelty declare it is by long odds the most sensational thing of the kind ever invented and are positive it will score a big hit with Keith's audiences. In the regular vaudeville are such well known entertainers as Milton and Dolly Nobles, who will play, "A Blue Grass Widow," the Quaker City quartet, comedians, singers and instrumentalists, Willis P. Sweetman and Barry Maxwell, two well known minstrel funmakers, in an act that is said to be screamingly amusing; Howard's trained dogs and ponies, a troupe of animals that will greatly interest and amuse the juveniles; Montrell, one of the best jugglers in the country; Smith and Kessler, in a new acrobatic comedy specialty; Lawrence Crane, a skilful and amusing magician and illusionist, and Grant and Grant, "real coon" singers and dancers.

D. R.

The annual meeting of the Sarah Hull Chapter, D. R., was held Friday morning, March 6, with Mrs. W. H. Foss of Eldridge street, Newton. The reports of the secretaries, treasurer, historian, auditor, and director of the Caleb Stark Chapter, Jr., Sons and Daughters, were read and placed on file.

The nominating committee presented the following list of officers which were unanimously elected:

Regent, Mrs. Francis E. Stanley; honorary regent, Mrs. Alex. M. Ferris; vice regents, Mrs. S. Curtis Smith, Mrs. Charles H. Breck, Mrs. J. H. Wheeler, Jr.; recording secretary, Mrs. E. W. Howe; corresponding secretary, Miss Clara J. Coburn; assistant corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. H. Bliss; treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Sanborn; historian, Mrs. P. T. Benner; executive committee, Mrs. G. B. King, Mrs. L. C. Hill, Mrs. T. W. Trowbridge, Miss M. R. Wheeler, auditor, Mrs. S. D. Whittemore.

The following delegates were chosen to represent the Chapter at the convention of the General Society in New York in May: Mrs. F. E. Stanley, Mrs. A. M. Ferris, Miss C. J. Coburn, Mrs. Prescott Warren, Mrs. J. F. Heckman, and Miss Anna Whiting. Mrs. J. F. Heckman, recording secretary of State Society, spoke to the Chapter of the work of that organization, and Mrs. A. M. Ferris, historian of General Society, had something of interest to say from her standpoint. "The Mountain Whites" will be the subject at the meeting in April.

This is what can be said of "Dr. Harrison's Peristaltic Lozenges," an easy and satisfactory remedy for Constipation. Consequently a preventative of the many ills that follow in its footsteps. This is not a patent concoction, but was used for a long time in the private practice of an old successful New England practitioner, and has been on the Market and meeting with increasing sales for nearly three-quarters of a Century. All druggists sell them. They are easy to take and act as a regulator of the lower system. See adv. in another column.

At the Churches.

The Woman's Guild of St. John's church, Newtonville, met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. B. Hackett on Highland avenue.

Bishop Lawrence will administer confirmation at Grace church on Sunday evening, May 3d.

At the Newton Centre Methodist church next Sunday evening, Rev. L. H. Dorchester will continue his special addresses. The topic will be "The Face of Christ."

At the North Evangelical church, Nonantum, last Wednesday evening, an old folks concert was given under the direction of Mr. E. L. Bacon. Mr. C. F. Bacon was the accompanist and Miss Minerva Weldon gave recitations.

The Bible class of the Woman's League connected with the New Church, Newtonville, met Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Kittie Thompson on Otis street.

The offering at Grace church next Sunday will be for the Education of Young Men for the Ministry.

Dr. W. T. Grenfell will give an illustrated address descriptive of his work among the sailors of the Labrador coast at Eliot church this evening.

Boston Music Hall—While many of the Boston theatres are feeling the effects of the Lenten season the Music Hall continues to be crowded at every performance and the excellent shows which are being presented in that theatre serve as magnets to draw the people. For the coming week the attraction will be Dainty Annie Blanche in the popular melodramatic success of the season, "A Little Outcast." Miss Blanche is one of the most popular actresses on the American stage at the present time and she has always been a big favorite with Boston theatregoers who remember her for her excellent acting as Taggs in the big production of the "County Fair." Miss Blanche's specialty is "child" parts and her diminutive stature and charming grace enables her to play this line of parts to perfection. In "A Little Outcast," Miss Blanche appears in the roll of "Bob," a newsboy. Performances will be given each afternoon and evening during the week commencing with the matinee on Monday.

Grand Opera House—The scenic part of "Alphonse and Gaston," which will return to the Grand Opera House next week is rarely equalled, never surpassed for genuine fun by any comic opera or musical production. It comprises three splendid stage pictures, "The Railroad Station," "The Home of the Tiger," and "The Grand Canal in Venice." No expense has been spared to get up these scenes in a manner worthy of Mr. Gus Hill, who prides himself on perfection of production. The performance is said to be improved one hundred per cent. since seen here before. There will be matinees as usual, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Horse Show.

There is an impression abroad that the modern horse show is primarily a society function, a sort of parade ground where well gowned women may display the latest Parisian creations to advantage. It is true that horse shows are very attractive to members of the smart set, but society is not the whole thing, as the show itself is useful and beneficial to the general welfare of the horse. A glance at the premium list for this year's Boston show, to be held in Mechanics' Building, during the week of April 20 to 25, clearly demonstrates the value of exhibitions of this nature from a purely horse point of view. The entries for the show will close March 28, and any information regarding classes or prize list may be had by addressing the secretary, Capt. Samuel D. Parker, Room 229 Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

"HIAWATHA" IN INDIAN

REAL BIRDWAYS TO APPEAR IN FRIDAY. R. B. BURTON'S MUSICAL DRAMA.

Every admirer of Longfellow's masterpiece "Hiawatha," will be interested in the production of the musical drama or spectacle of this name which is to be given for a brief engagement in Mechanics' Building, Boston, commencing March 18.

Every year at Deserats, Canada, the warriors of the Ojibwa tribe give an outdoor performance under the blue canopy of the skies of the romance of "Hiawatha." Here Mr. L. O. Armstrong of Montreal and Frederick R. Burton, the composer, discovered the beauties and possibilities in aboriginal music and Indian drama. The result is a combination of a dramatic spectacle based on Longfellow's poem with Mr. Burton's harmonization of Indian music. Adequate scenic accessories have been provided, most of this work coming from the studio of Francis West, formerly a Boston artist. A selected orchestra of forty five pieces, a white chorus of sixty voices and a genuine Ojibwa band of about two score warriors, squaws and papooses will figure in the unique production to be given in Boston.

During the engagement at Mechanics' hall, Boston, performances will be given twice daily, afternoons at two and evenings at eight. The admission has been placed at 50 cents.

Police Paragraphs.

Wm. H. Fitzpatrick of 175 Derby street, West Newton, was fined $10 by Judge Bacon in the municipal court Monday morning on complaint of Patrolman David Neagle, charged with assault on his father, Patrick Fitzpatrick.

George T. Butterfield of Cambridge, arrested Saturday afternoon by patrolman Corroy, on a warrant charging him with forgery, was arraigned in the police court Monday morning. He pleaded guilty to the complaint and was held in $500 for the grand jury. It was only a few weeks ago that he was released from the Concord reformatory. The case against Butterfield dates back to January, 1902, at which time he was employed by Mrs. H. B. Page of Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, as a coachman. It is alleged that, having been sent to pay a bill for which a check for $10 and $10 in cash had been furnished him by Mrs. Page, he not only decamped with the cash, but raised the amount of the check to $20.

At Eliot church next Monday afternoon the pastor's Lenten class for boys and girls will be held. The subject will be "In the Shop, or Working Ways."

ELECTRIC NEWS.

Important News Affecting Boylston St. Line.

Text of Trestle Bill and of Railroad Commissioners' Order.

The following bill is now being enacted into law by the General Court:

An act to authorize the Boston and Worcester Street Railway Company to construct, complete and operate its railway over the tracks of the Boston and Albany Railroad in the City of Newton.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Section 1. The Boston and Worcester Street Railway Company is hereby empowered to construct, complete and operate its street railway over and across the tracks of the Boston and Albany Railroad on Boylston street in the city of Newton upon a wooden trestle, which it is hereby authorized to construct and maintain in said Boylston street for said purpose, upon plans to be submitted to and approved by the board of railroad commissioners. The use of said trestle shall be discontinued and said trestle removed upon the completion of the work of the abolition of the grade crossing of the tracks of said railroad with Boylston street.

Section 2. In constructing such trestle, clear headroom of sixteen feet shall be provided over the top of the present tracks of the Boston and Albany Railroad, and the grade of the approaches to the crossing upon said trestle shall not exceed six and five-tenths feet per one hundred feet.

Section 3. The construction, maintenance and use of such trestle shall be deemed not to be an additional easement or servitude. If any person is legally damaged in his property by the construction, maintenance and use of such trestle, such damages may be assessed by a jury of the superior court upon proceedings conducted as provided with respect to the layout of ways in said city of Newton.

Section 4. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

The following decree has been issued by the Railroad Commissioners on the petition of the Commonwealth Avenue Street Railway Company, for approval of a relocation of tracks in the City of Newton:

September 8, 1902, the Board of Aldermen of Newton, upon the petition of the Commonwealth Avenue Street Railway Company, relocated the existing tracks of the company in Boylston street. Upon the following day a member of the Board, discovering that the terms and conditions which have been imposed upon the company in the original grant of location in Boylston street had not been reimposed in the order of relocation, gave notice through the city clerk of his intention to move a reconsideration of the latter order. At the next meeting, held a week later, the Board of Aldermen reconsidered its action on September 8 and again passed the order of relocation attaching the same conditions that had been imposed in the original grant.

The street railway company, claiming that the amended order of September 15 is invalid, asks this Board to approve the order of September 8. It is apparent that the conditions in force as to the tracks of the company were located were inadvertently omitted in the order of September 8. To issue a certificate approving that order, assuming that it now has any validity, in view of the subsequent action of the Board of Aldermen in amending it would be inconsistent with the public interests.

We must therefore dismiss the petition. (Signed) James F. Jackson, George W. Bishop, Clinton White, Commissioners.

The contract has been awarded and work will be begun soon on a building to be used as general headquarters and a waiting station for the Boston & Worcester street railway company, at the corner of Eastern avenue and Concord street, So. Framingham, nearly opposite the brigade headquarters on the state camp grounds.

The structure will be of a pleasing style of architecture, brick and iron construction, with granite trimmings. 41 by 29 feet on the ground, and two stories in height. There will be a permanent shed on three sides and the platform will be gabled.

The first floor will contain the general waiting room, receiver's room and toilet rooms. On the second floor will be the general superintendent's office, chief clerk's office, electrician's office and office of general train dispatcher, all cars on the line between Boston and Worcester to be controlled from the dispatcher's office.

The building will be heated by steam. The cost will be about $15,000 and the contract calls for its completion May 1. John J. Prindle of South Framingham is to be the builder.

DIRECT NOMINATIONS.

The legislative committee on Election laws has been hearing public sentiment on the extension of the principle of direct nominations.

It will be remembered that caucus nominations are now made directly for representatives to the General Court in districts composed wholly of cities and for all elective municipal offices. The experiment worked so satisfactorily that the proposition to extend it to senatorial, councillor, and congressional districts this year did not bring out a single remonstrant. The only opposition was from county officials who objected to its application to county affairs. The Luce bill this year applies the direct nomination to all districts composed of five or less cities and towns and is permissive to all districts, except the state, for districts of more than five cities and towns, fifty voters having the right to have the question of direct nomination submitted to the people in such districts.

We have always heartily favored the direct nomination idea and firmly believe that much corruption will be saved by its extension to all elective offices.

READ FUND LECTURES.

The series of Read Fund lectures which has just closed was exceptionally good, and it is hard to improve upon such men as Peary, Cable and Watterson, all of whom have a national reputation. The committee, of which Alderman Hubbard is chairman deserve praise for their selections this season.

Note must also be made of the greatly improved order which has been maintained in the hall this winter, so that the lectures might be enjoyed without the effervescence of the small boy and the rowdiness of the hoodlum. The committee are to be also congratulated upon their success in this line.

The people of Massachusetts are not accustomed to place Senators Hoar and Lodge in the same category with Senator Tillman of South Carolina, but the recent "legislative blackmail" of the latter Senator, is possible only through the utterly indefensible rules of the Senate, which have been and still are championed by the Senators from this state. Senators Hoar and Lodge must therefore be deemed allies of such men as Senator Tillman until they recognize the fact that the people of this country and state are demanding the adoption of some form of cloture by the Senate.

The sad accident at the Moody street grade crossing at Waltham this week, is a warning not to neglect the abolition of grade crossings in this city. It almost reconciles us to the clumsy expedient of a trestle as proposed for Boylston street.

Police Paragraphs.

Patrolman John McNeil was suspended from duty by Chief of Police Tarbox last week and charges of not properly patrolling his route preferred against him. He was given a hearing Friday morning before Mayor Weeks. On Saturday at roll call McNeil was laid off for one week without pay.

John J. Boyce of Chapel street, Nonantum, was discovered in the drug store of Joseph G. Kilburn last Tuesday morning about 5 o'clock by Officer Butler. When told to come out Boyce threw a flower pot through the window at the officer. This was followed by other missiles and a revolver shot from the policeman only incited Boyce to more activity. George Gibson and Daniel Sullivan came to the assistance of Butler, who then climbed into the store through a rear window. Just as he got in, the man, pulling a revolver, and shouting "Get out of the way or I'll shoot," dived through the glass in the front door and fell into Gibson's arms. The latter, although severely cut under the eye by a splinter of glass, pluckily held on to the man until the arrival of Sullivan and Butler. He made a desperate struggle to escape, and the three captors had their hands full getting him to the station. He was badly cut about the head and face from his leap through the window, and it was necessary to summon a physician to dress his injuries. He gave the name of Dennis Ryan of Waltham, but as he was about to be arraigned in court he was recognized as John J. Boyce of Chapel street, Nonantum. A loaded revolver was found on him. In court Wednesday morning Judge Bacon held him in $2000, bonds for the grand jury.

Wilbur Bros. of Nonantum square report their restaurant entered by burglars on Wednesday night and $25.01 taken from the safe.

There was a good attendance, not withstanding the storm and Mrs. H. H. Carter, the president, introduced Mrs. F. H. Tucker, who gave an interesting and instructive lecture on "Roadside, Street and Forest." Over 100 views illustrating the subject were thrown upon the screen. At the close of the lecture tea was served by the social committee of the federation.

Death of S. S. Kilburn.

Mr. Samuel S. Kilburn died at his home on Waltham street Tuesday morning as the result of a relapse which he suffered after a recent attack of the grip. He was well known as one of the oldest engravers in Boston and one of the best known men in that trade in all the country. He was born in Boston but practically had lived all his life in West Newton, to which place his parents removed when he was a little child and he is one of the oldest if not the oldest resident of that village. His boyhood days were passed there and at the age of about twenty he began to learn the wood engraving business, under the leadership of Mr. Bowen, an old-time engraver, whose place of business was in Chelsea. After spending sometime there, Mr. Kilburn went into the office of R. P. Mallory, a wood engraver, under whom he finished learning the trade. Having a remarkable talent for drawing and sketching he became a draftsman for Gleason's Pictorial, and in that capacity travelled all over the country making sketches for engravers to finish. Later Mr. Kilburn formed a partnership with his former employer, Mr. Mallory, under the name of Kilburn & Mallory, and they did an engraving business at a place on Washington street a little north of Water street. Mr. Kilburn still continued with Gleason's as long as it was published. Afterward he did general commercial and book work engraving, especially for the first class magazines, and also for leading book publishers. He was quick to adopt new ideas in engraving, and was among the very first to go into half-tone and line engraving, when these methods largely supplanted wood engraving. On the death of Mr. Mallory, Mr. Kilburn continued the business which today is conducted as the S. S. Kilburn Company, Franklin street. He was a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company and was a Mason, belonging to Massachusetts lodge, St. Andrew's, which he joined in 1885, and De Molay Commandery. Mr. Kilburn is survived by his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Pike, and two sons, Warren S. Kilburn and Austin S. Kilburn, of West Newton. Funeral services were held from his late residence at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon and were largely attended, delegates being present from the Massachusetts lodge of Masons, St. Andrew's Chapter, De Molay Commandery, Knights Templars, and the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company.

Rev. Julian C. Jaynes officiated and there was singing by the Mendelssohn quartet. The burial was at Newton cemetery.

Letter to John T. Burns,

Dear Sir: You'd strike it rich if you could find a way to shave your customers in less time, for less cost, and make the shave last twice or three times as long.

You wouldn't shave the same person so many times, nor get so much of his money; but the whole town would be talking about you, and everybody would come to you for a shave.

Devote lead and zinc exactly that in paints. It takes fewer gallons, and it wears longer. Costs less for the job, and you don't have to do it again for years and years six years at least.

"Fewer gallons; wears longer." Takes fewer gallons to paint a house with Devote Lead and Zinc than with mixed paints; and it wears longer than mixed paints or lead and oil.

Yours truly,
F. W. Devote & Co.,

Washington Letter.

Washington, D. C., March 9, 1903.
The Fifty-seventh Congress has passed into history with a most creditable record on the statute book. Perhaps the most important of recent enactments are the anti-trust provisions of the last sessions which it is believed will prevent the destruction of competition by the great corporations and incidentally will facilitate the bringing to justice those companies which attempt to violate the law. Both the President and Attorney General Knox have expressed satisfaction with the progress made in this direction and the republican leaders say that if it is demonstrated that further amendment of the statutes is found necessary such will be provided by the next Congress. A thoroughly adequate and comprehensive immigration law has been added to the statutes. It contains no new and radical features but co-ordinates and harmonizes those enacted in the past.

Secretary Lodge, speaking to your correspondent on the work of Congress said after adjournment "Two of the most important laws enacted this session, in my judgment, are the Army and the Militia reorganization bills. The creation of a general staff for the control of the army has long been advocated by Secretary Root and is everywhere acknowledged to be a step in the right direction. The Militia law will enable the authorities in the War Department to supervise to some extent the organization of the militia and unify its accommodations drill and tactics so that in the event of an emergency the Federal government would find in the state guard a far more effective organization than was the case at the beginning of the Spanish War. I am of course deeply disappointed at the failure of the Philippine tariff bill and consider the method of the democrats who defeated it inexcusable. I also regret the failure of the Aldrich financial bill." It may be said, however, that there are some Republicans in Congress who are glad of the failure of the Aldrich bill.

On March 5th the Senate met in special session and seventeen senators renewed their oath of office while ten newly elected members were sworn in. The three others had not yet arrived at the Capitol. The scene in the Senate chamber on the reconvening of the Senate was brilliant in the extreme. The galleries were filled with the friends of the senators about to be sworn in and their desks were in many instances piled with flowers. Senator Gorman's desk was completely hidden with a number of magnificent floral designs, one standing not less than ten feet high. All bore the oriole colors, yellow and black. Senator Hopkins had the largest number of floral remembrances on the republican side of the chamber. Senators Foraker, Spooner, Platt of Connecticut, Allison and Gorman were the recipients of vociferous applause as they came forward to be sworn. A small amount of routine business was transacted and the Senate then adjourned.

One of the missing faces in the new Senate is that of Senator Jones of Nevada who has served for thirty years and has long been recognized as an able authority on tariff questions. Senator Allison took the oath for his sixth term, the longest on record. As chairman of the committee on appropriations Mr. Allison has rendered invaluable service to his party. Among the retiring senators was Mr. Vest, long and affectionately known as "The Little Giant of Missouri." He had many warm friends on the republican side of the chamber and was regarded as the representative of the best elements among the democratic senators. His genial presence will be missed. Mr. Vest was the last man in the Senate who had served as a member of the Confederate Congress. Two men on the republican side retired with actual relief. They are Senators Wellington and Simon. Mr. Wellington had long been out of touch with his party and since his famous reference to President McKinley had been shunned by the members of both parties. Senator Simon of Oregon has never mingled with his colleagues. Reserved and taciturn, he never seemed to be able to understand the spirit of the Senate or to take in good part the joking to which every new senator must submit. He has held himself aloof from the first and expressed great satisfaction at the conclusion of his public service.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

Boston, March 11.

Senator Skinner of the Newton district never lets apparently insurmountable obstacles phase him for a minute. On Monday he was slightly annoyed by finding that he had left the facts concerning the representation of other states at the Louisiana Purchase exposition at his office, and could not obtain duplicates of his committee clerk. The report of the senate committee on ways and means, cutting down the appropriation favored by his committee on federal relations, $100,000 to $50,000 was in the calendar. He met this situation by securing the assignment of the matter for debate tomorrow. Then he found himself up against a far more formidable proposition. Representative Warren had informed him that that very morning the abutments on the line of the Boston and Worcester road near the Boylston street crossing had discovered that there was no limit of time fixed for maintaining the trestle over the Boston and Albany railroad, and he was requested by these abutments and by Mayor Weeks to have the bill postponed until the 25th, while an effort was made to secure an agreement on this point. It will be remembered that Samuel Hoar, counsel for the Albany system, has all along contended that the effect of permitting the Boston and Worcester to cross would be to delay separation of grades at this point. Full of courage, Senator Skinner rose in his place and moved postponement. But he found that the committees on railroads and street railways, which had jointly heard this matter and reported upon it, had not the slightest idea of permitting any dilatory motion to block its way, and by a vote of 9 in favor to 10 against the motion was declared lost. He urged a roll call to verify this astonishing result, and it stood 9 to 14. Most men who face such a situation would have thrown up their hands, but the Watertown solon immediately rose with a smile and said he understood some members voted against the postponement because it was for too long a period and he moved that the matter go over for a week, asking the favor as a point of senatorial courtesy. This settled things, for one after another withdrew opposition until finally Senator How of Haverhill, who had been most persistent against any delay suggested that the bill go over until today, and the motion was unanimously agreed to. Thus do persistency, courtesy and courage secure their reward. It was a little unfair to place the burden of meeting this situation upon Senator Skinner so suddenly, for he stated on the floor that he had no opportunity to study the merits of the situation, while of course the railroad and street railway men in the senate were perfectly familiar with the question. By Tuesday morning the matter was adjusted and it was understood the bill would be engrossed without debate today.

Yesterday the question of a system of municipal conduits for Newton came up before the committee on mercantile affairs, and was considered in conjunction with several similar bills including a general bill, which under the policy of the General Court should be reported rather than any special bill. It is sometimes assumed that local conditions exist which justify special legislation, and a measure gets reported applying to a single locality but on a matter which would be the entering wedge of a revolution in methods of handling wires in our cities it is hardly probable that a special bill would be reported. For this or some other reason the mayor asked that no action be taken on the measure.

Yesterday the committee on education gave a hearing to Mrs. Electa N. L. Walton and her husband, George A. Walton on a petition for a parental school for girls to save girl truants being sent to the county transient school, or worse still to the Lancaster school for girls.

The committee on roads and bridges has decided to give a hearing on March 20 on the petition of the mayor of Newton for a bridge over the Charles river between Newton and Weston.

Gov. Bates has once more reminded the general court that it is best to go slow and sure sometimes. He vetoed the bill to provide that the Fitchburg and Lowell street railway company may carry freight and on Monday the street railway committee on his recommendation, reported a general bill to meet these cases so often arising in the legislature. The general bill not only gives the companies this right if the railroad commissioners approve their petitions but it provides that the responsibilities which go with the privilege shall be imposed. In other words if a street railway secures the right to carry the desirable freight and express matter it must also, like the railroads take the more undesirable freight. This is the true attitude, for there are obligations as well as privileges in this transportation question.

AMUSEMENTS

Tremont Theatre—Successful as was James K. Hackett's first engagement at the Tremont Theatre in January, his return visit to the same house which began last Monday promises to overshadow it. Boston theatregoers have found exactly to the taste Winston Churchill's dramatization of his own book "The Crisis" which popular question is the most popular novel of the present day. There have been many so-called "book plays" presented to the public in recent years but only a few have approached satisfaction. Mr. Hackett has fully renewed his former triumphs in the role of Stephen Brice and his dashing virile embodiment of the character deserves the enthusiastic plaudits lavished upon it by the crowded audiences. He has the support of the same admirable company which appeared with him earlier in the season and the performances are characterized by the same general excellence. The engagement has only two weeks more to run.

We catch our customers as young as possible—when they are small boys.

Then we keep them with us until they bring in their own boys to be fitted—and not seldom their boys' boys, too.

Every year we graduate a large "class" from our Boys' Clothing Department into the Men's Department; and therefore we have to keep our "kindergarten" constantly filling up.

For these reasons we give very careful attention to our Boys' Department—it's one of the corner stones of a great clothing business.

Today's news in respect to boys' wearables takes the form of a bit about Sailor Suits and

STORE NEWS.

Time was when retail clothing stores gave practically all their attention to the "average" man—that is to say, the man of average height, average breast measure and average length of leg.

The stout man and the thin man were either forced to employ a custom tailor or to accept a more or less unbecoming "mish."

We bore our part in changing these conditions.

We slackened no whit of our attention to the "average" man, but at the same time we put upon our counters garments suitable for either a Falstaff or a Casius.

The result was most satisfactory.

MANY PERSONS STARVE THEMSELVES.

"The real basis of perfect health is perfect nourishment. Pretty nearly every condition of ill health is due to improper or imperfect nourishment; either the proper food is not eaten or the stomach does not extract the proper nourishment from the food that enters it. If this it is not meant that the hearty eater is necessarily healthy—the stomach may not extract the proper elements that make blood, nerve and muscle. Food should be relished; it should taste good; it should cause no distress; it should satisfy. How few there are who are masters of what they may eat! Imperfect stomach action may prevent them from partaking of a great many tempting dishes. The terrors of dyspepsia and indigestion lead many persons to actually starve themselves; they fear the consequent distress of eating to please their palate."

VITONE TONIC just before meals induces a healthy appetite and prepares the stomach to take care of the food that enters it. Its gentle tonic influence puts every gland and function into perfect operation; the effect is natural and free from artificial stimulation. ## THE OLD LYCEUM DAYS: HAVE WE BETTERED THEM?

To the Editor of the Graphic:—

"What good times we used to have in the old Lyceum at West Newton!" This was the word of an elderly gentleman some time since as he met and recognized one of the actors in that Lyceum. It brought to mind at once the audiences that were wont to crowd the old basement Town Hall between twenty and forty years ago on Monday evenings in the winter season and it also suggested the contrast between the then of the Town and the now of the City in the matter of popular assemblies. It occurred to us that it would interest the younger readers of the Graphic to know what antedated their life in our city and surely the surviving participants in that Lyceum will be glad to be reminded of those good old times.

It was a unique institution and had a life of its own. It was the child of the West Newton Athenaeum, an association that has passed out of existence but whose history is worthy of a public record which no one yet has made. Its influence was felt in the literary atmosphere created in West Newton out of which the Lyceum was born. The Lyceum meetings attracted the people of every part of the town and they came early to secure their seats. Its popularity was due first of all to the willingness of the professional men of the community to contribute to its exercises. Lawyers, doctors, clergymen, teachers, journalists and resident graduates of colleges, besides other literary men were accustomed to take part.

The variety of exercises was also a secret of its success. The standing program of each meeting was as follows: A musical entertainment, a paper, a lecture and an open discussion. For all these parts we borrowed no stars. There was sufficient brilliancy in our own heavens.

The presiding officer was continued from season to season in his office because of his fitness therefor. He had a full clear voice and the authority of a schoolmaster which secured order. This was William E. Sheldon. The musical portion was under the superintendence of Mr. James T. Allen for most of the time and it was surprising how much and varied home talent he could summon to his aid.

The paper was always anticipated and listened to with special interest because of its local hints and its treasury of witty surprises. When we mention the names of Hon. Oliver Warner and Rev. Dr. Tarbox as successive editors we see at once how much originality and brightness would be mingled in their contributions.

Then came the lecture, limited to three-quarters of an hour. Who will not remember among these the one on phrenology by Mr. Drew in which he illustrated the subject by two object lessons, a human skull and a squash? Mr. Drew was a funny man and his rising was always the signal for subsequent merriment.

We also recall Dr. Tarbox's lecture on the moon in which he cruelly dispelled so many of our common superstitions, such as its relation to the right and left shoulder and the pork boiling in the pot.

The climax of the evening was the discussion, usually upon some current topic. Here was where new voices were heard and where the old debaters had their chance for measuring swords. It was always an enjoyable evening and we do not wonder at the exclamation of our friend, "What good times we had!"

Many other names might be mentioned in connection with these exercises, but space forbids.

Once a year we had a benefit to raise a modest sum for our expenses, and this also was an occasion to be recalled for its originality. It might be a mock Town Meeting for which the articles in the Warrant were surprising, such as, "To see if the Town will appropriate $100,000 to widen Cheesecake Brook to make it navigable for ships and to erect a custom house on Waltham street." Another evening was given to declamations in which the "old fellows" spoke their pieces. Then we heard Brutus and Cassius once more, and "Venerable men, you have come down to us from a former generation." "On Linden, when the sun was low," "With four-armed justice." These with many other familiar declamations filled the evening and we found how good it was to live over some of the days of our youth.

Such a Lyceum now seems a thing of the past. As our winter is closing, we cannot forbear the contrast with these former times and it is a matter of regret that we do not have more popular assemblies in our city.

Once we had our annual town meeting, where native eloquence had no opportunity for vent. It was worth going miles to hear our rural orator from Oak Hill.

Then we had our Horticultural Society which journeyed about the town in its meetings for papers and discussions, and in the autumn had its annual banquet at the completion of its exhibition, which brought our citizens together.

We miss these opportunities now. We have clubs and clubs of all kinds, but the club is exclusive and not inclusive. What we need is an arena open to all and especially stimulating to the ambition of the young such as was afforded in the Lyceum.

We delight in our progress as a city, but it is a question if it is not more material than mental. We live more comfortably, have more and better houses. Our roads are smoother; our streets are wider; our railroad is depressed; we have trolleys running in all directions. We have broad boulevards which begin to be lined with fine mansions. Spacious school buildings and elegant church edifices of stone are multiplying. We are proud of our city, but these things have to do with the material side of life.

We have, indeed, our improved schools and enriched libraries accessible to all and these are, perhaps, the greatest factors in the education of our people; but it is not enough to recite lessons and read books. There must needs be other supplemental privileges to train our youth to think, to think on their feet and to utter their thoughts in good Anglo-Saxon. Public debate is most helpful in this direction. A few winter evenings thus spent have wrought wonderfully in developing talent. Even statesmen have been started in the careers in the country Lyceum.

Knowledge is not wisdom, but wisdom is the best use of knowledge. Education by its very etymology is a drawing forth and not a stuffing in. A late writer has said, "Many children are so crammed with everything that really they know nothing." In an interesting sketch of Herbert Spencer in the February World's Work he is quoted as saying that if he read as much as others he would know as little as they do. In the life of the great London preacher, Joseph Parker, just published, we are told that he did not read many books. It is not a question of amount but of availability. Some minds are like attics, places of storage, full of furniture which may be antique and valuable, but as full of confusion. He is the wise man whose knowledge, however, little it may be, is so well arranged that he can always have it at command when he wants it. This is most surely secured by self-posed promotion in public discussion. It was the poor wise man who took the city and that is true today.

There are other suggestions from the good old times at West Newton. One of the interested and active supporters of that Lyceum said the other day in our hearing: "There we learned that there is more than one side to truth. We cannot tell how much good was done by that Lyceum." It is surely pleasant for some of us to revive these memories and it leads us to indulge the hope that in some form the Lyceum may reappear in New England with its former popularity.

THE ALLEN SCHOOL

A unique occasion was that on Friday last, when the venerable Allen school building, corner of Washington and Highland streets, West Newton, which has had such an historic past, was used for the last time for school purposes. There were present, several whose lives had been closely in touch with the building, almost since its erection about 1825 Mr. Nathaniel T. Allen, the founder of the Allen school, who, for over fifty years has been connected with the building, was first introduced by the new principal, Mr. Bailey. He gave a brief historical sketch of the building, which was erected for an Academy by Hon. Abraham Fuller, then purchased for the Normal school by Hon. Josiah Quincy, which had the distinction of being the first normal school for young women in the world. In 1853 it was purchased for a private school, to which was later added a gymnasium, the first in connection with any preparatory school. Swedish gymnastics also were taught for the first time in the state here. While the first kindergarten under American auspices in the United States was opened in connection with this private school in 1864.

Mr. Allen called to mind the various noted people, whose voices had been heard within those walls and who had been deeply interested in the school. Horace Mann, Cyrus Pierce, George B. Emerson, Charles Sumner, Samuel G. Howe, Prof. Guvot, Elizabeth Peabody, Catherine Beecher, Wm. Alcott, O. Bronson Alcott, Lowell Mason, and others, closed by saying that the building had always been used in the organization or support of any or all reform movements, anti-slavery, civil service, etc.

Rev. Mr. Patrick, former Congregational minister in West Newton for over 30 years, next spoke of what the Allen school had meant to the community at large, and what an influence the Allen Brothers and cousins had exerted on pupils from all sections of the globe.

Mr. Joseph Allen emphasized the fact that such an historic building should be preserved to be visited by the many who come to West Newton yearly to see the old haunts of their school days, where Horace Mann and others worked and that it should be the headquarters of any historical society of Newton.

Mr. Walton then spoke at length of his connection with the building in Normal school days and of the character of the men who influenced the early work, while Mrs. Walton, the first acting woman principal of any Normal school, fittingly closed the occasion with the assurance that the mantle of those early days had fallen on the workers of more recent times.

All wished Mr. Bailey as great success in his new surroundings as had blessed the work accomplished by the Allen school in the old educational home.

The famous palace of Mrs. John L. Gardner of Boston, which has been for the past year a sealed book to the public, was opened recently to a limited number. Photographers were absolutely prohibited, except in the case of Mr. Thomas B. Marr, the foremost photographer of the country, who, at Mrs. Gardner's request, has photographed the interior of the palace. These photographs have been secured by The Boston Herald, and, by permission of Mrs. Gardner, will be published in the Sunday edition of March 22. The remarkable excellence of the work of The Boston Herald will insure the best possible results, and readers of The Herald will be given a picture of a treat of rare quality. Of course, these photographs will be presented as the central double-page feature of the magazine section, now recognized as the greatest newspaper achievement of the times.

RECENT DEATHS.

CHARLES BURGHIER.

Mr. Charles Burghier, a former well known resident of this place, passed away at his home on Quincy avenue, Winthrop Highlands, last Friday after a somewhat protracted illness. He was born at Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., March 9th, 1858, and commenced his business career in the brush factory of J. F. Murray in New York City. Later he connected himself with the Automatic Signal Telegraph Company of New York remaining with that concern two years and coming to Boston became assistant to L. M. Bates in the establishment of a similar company in Boston. In 1880 he succeeded Mr. Bates as superintendent of the company, which then became the New England Department of the Automatic Fire Alarm and Extinguisher Company of New York. In 1894 he was elected secretary and superintendent of the Boston Automatic Fire Alarm Company, when the automatic fire alarm companies of Boston consolidated. Mr. Burghier invested improvements and perfected many valuable devices, the present efficiency of the Boston system being largely due to his work. He was a musician and composer of marked ability had a most amiable and lovable disposition and was exceedingly popular with all who knew him. He was a member and one of the trustees of the Newton Methodist church, was a Freemason, a member of the Electric Club and the Golden Cross, and was also connected with various social organizations. A widow and two sons survive him. Funeral services were held from his late residence Monday afternoon at 2.30 and were largely attended. Rev. George R. Grose, pastor of the Newton Methodist church pronounced an eloquent eulogy and favorite selections of the deceased were rendered by a male quartet. The floral offerings included a cross from the employes of the Boston Automatic Fire Alarm Company, a piece from the employes of the superintendent's office, a handsome offering from the board of directors of the Newton church and many others. Later the remains were taken to Woodlawn cemetery for interment.

T. D. HEATHFIELD.

Mr. Thomas D. Heathfield, the oldest member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the oldest active grain and flour dealer of New England, died Saturday morning at his residence in Newtonville, after a short illness. Mr. Heathfield was born in Quebec on May 25, 1822, and attended school in that Canadian city, then he moved to Montreal, where for four years, he served as a clerk. Coming to the United States, he settled in Boston on March 2, 1851, and became connected with the flour and grain forwarding business, under the firm name of McKay & Heathfield, with a branch at Portland, Me. In 1854 the firm name of the local business was changed to T. D. Heathfield, doing the largest grain and flour receiving business in the Boston market at that time.

After the Civil War Mr. Heathfield went into the brokerage business, representing some of the largest grain dealers of the West, at different times, and continuing to do so up to the time of his death. Only a short time ago he took his son into the firm. Deceased became a member of the Old Corn Exchange in 1851 and for some time previous to his death was the only surviving member of that organization. He also was a member of the Commercial Exchange, afterwards the Chamber of Commerce. His illness, resulting in death, was of short duration.

Funeral services were held from his late residence on Clyde street Tuesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock. Rev. Ozora S. Davis, pastor of the Central Congregational church, officiating. The Watertown Woman's Club quartet rendered, "I am Thine O Lord," and "One by One." A large delegation was present from the Chamber of Commerce. The interment was at Forest Hills.

MRS. MARY A. BRIMBLECOM.

Mrs. Mary A. Brimblecom, the wife of Mr. John B. Brimblecom, died at the residence of her son, Breamore road, Newton, on Monday, after a long illness. Mrs. Brimblecom was born in Boston, June 9, 1828, at the North End, and resided in that city until her marriage in 1851, when she moved to Marblehead. Since 1874 the family has resided in Newton. Mrs. Brimblecom was of a retiring nature, owing to deafness, but in her circle of intimate friends she was very much beloved.

The funeral services were held from her late home on Thursday afternoon, Rev. Julian C. Jaynes officiating, and there was singing by the Beethoven quartet. Following cremation at Mt. Auburn the ashes were taken to Marblehead for burial in the family tomb.

MRS. HARRIET H. WALKER.

Mrs. Harriet H. Walker, wife of William H. Walker, died at her home on Washington street last Friday, aged 79 years. She had been in failing health since she received injuries in an electric car accident some three years ago, but death was directly due to bronchitis following an attack of influenza. Mrs. Walker had been a resident of Newton for over 40 years, was a large real estate owner and had done much toward improving Charlesbank road. She was public spirited and took great interest in city affairs until failing health necessitated her retirement to the seclusion of her home. She is survived by her husband and one daughter, Mrs. Charles J. Brown. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home, Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson, pastor of

H. B. ALLEN.

Mr. Howard B. Allen, a resident of Newton for 28 years, passed away at his home on Park street last Sunday morning.

Mr. Allen was born in Holyoke, Oct. 13, 1849. He attended Williston Seminary in Easthampton. In 1868 he came to Boston and was employed at the National Bank of Redemption till 1875, when he became receiving teller of the New England Trust Co., where he served for 27 years. Mr. Allen was a member of Eliot church. In 1872 he was married to Miss Juliet Ferry of Easthampton, who with his mother and two sons, Horton S. Allen of Salem and Winthrop B. Allen of Newton survives him.

Funeral services were held from the family residence Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock and were attended by many neighbors and other friends in Newton and Boston. Rev. William H. Davis, pastor of Eliot church, conducted the service, which consisted of the reading of passages of scripture and prayers. There was no singing. The pallbearers were G. P. Atkins of Newton, E. E. Wakefield of Newtonville, H. H. Hunt of West Newton and John W. Pillsbury of Boston, who represented the New England Trust Company. At the close of the service the remains were taken to Easthampton for burial.

JAMES H. DOLLIVER.

James H. Dolliver, for nearly a half century a resident of Auburn, and one of the oldest employees in the service of the Boston and Albany railroad company, died Wednesday morning at his home on Central street after an illness of several months. He was 82 years old and left a wife and one daughter.

Mr. Dolliver was born in Boston, Feb. 7, 1831, and received his education in the public schools of this city, his parents having removed here when he was a boy. During the civil war he was employed as a page at the state house and later entered the employ of the Chadwick lead company of Boston, where he remained several years.

Some 26 years ago he was appointed baggage master at the Auburn railroad station and two years later was promoted to the post of station master, which he held up to the time of his death. He was regarded as one of the most faithful and efficient men in the service of the road, and during his long residence in this city held the confidence and respect of all who knew him. He was a member of Gethsemane commandery, K. T. Boston lodge, A. M. S., Riverdale lodge, N. E. O. P., Meridian lodge, F. and A. M., Auburndale fraternal benefit society and of several other organizations.

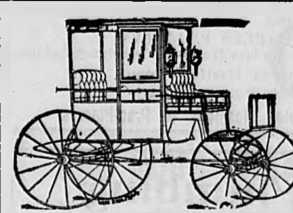

The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2.30 from the Congregational chapel.

Street Railway Matters

Bertam D. Sumner, one of the confidential advisers of James F. Shaw of the James F. Shaw syndicate, is authority for the statement that the Boston and Worcester street railway will be completed and ready for the operation of cars between the Park street subway in Boston to the Worcester city hall by June 1, that date being fixed upon by the company for the opening of the through trolley line for passage traffic between the two cities.

Mr. Sumner has stated that every obstacle and barrier that has stood in the pathway of the Boston and Worcester corporation has been removed and that work will be begun in a few days on building the road through Southboro, operations on which have been held up by reason of legal entanglements raised by counsel for the town of Southboro, and that the contract for the separation of street and railroad crossings at level grade on the old turnpike between here and Natick, had also been awarded, and that it is expected the work will be finished within the stipulated time in the contract, 60 days.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Contrary to expectations, the market failed to go to pieces, and supporting orders were on hand at the first sign of dangerous liquidation.

There is a bear party at work, and all sorts of tactics are employed at times to cause declines in prices, but the good stocks are well taken, and nearly all the selling is confined to pools and professional traders.

There is no question about money being tight, but we are by no means on the verge of a monetary panic, as rumor would have us believe a week ago. The fact that Sec. Shaw on his visit to New York found nothing in the situation that demanded any immediate relief measure has done a great deal toward relieving apprehension on this account.

Speculation must be held in check, however, for the time being, as there is little money that can be spared for this purpose, but our credit abroad is good and there will be plenty of cash forthcoming for the legitimate demands of the country's business.

The enormous business of the country has caused to a great extent the present demand for money and liquidation in the market has been the immediate means of supplying it. The past week's liquidation should show a large contraction of loans and a better condition of the bank reserves.—Curtis & Sederquist's letter.

With the Aldrich bill dead, time money professed to be scarce, and the ostensible war on between Keene and Harriman, the professional bear party has been making the most out of an inevitably ephemeral existence. It has been only at rare intervals that the travelling for bears has been good in the past few years, and after each little spell of activity has usually intervened a much longer period of hibernation. Indications are plenty that this cycle is still unbroken. That every bear argument is of but temporary force needs little proof. The monetary situation has seen the ebb and is on the turn; and with the recovery of funds from the interior, rates should be distinctly Colonial Theatre—The great Drury Lane spectacle, "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," still continues to occupy the principal attention of New England theatregoers. Notwithstanding the many splendid offerings at the various Boston playhouses, hundreds are turned away nightly from the Colonial theatre, when the gigantic and immensely satisfying Klaw & Erlanger Drury Lane entertainment holds forth. It is so long since the theatre-going public of this vicinity has been treated to one of these colossal stage spectacles that the introduction of "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast" has been received with untold delight. Its great success, however, must not be attributed to this fact. It is the largest and most brilliant conglomeration of stage novelties ever banded together, a fact which, taken into consideration with the popular scale of prices in vogue at the Colonial, serves to make it such a popular hit with the public. The Flying Ballet, of course, is the great feature of the production, while the ballet of "The Four Seasons" furnishes innumerable stage pictures that are indescribable.

Majestic Theatre—The last week of the successful engagement of "The Storks" will commence next Monday and on next Saturday night the last performance will be given of this merry jingle of music and nonsense. During the run of the piece, which commenced on February 16, large and enthusiastic audiences have been the rule and the musical fantasy might continue on indefinitely were it not for the attractions being booked at the theatre. "The Storks" is one of the most entertaining of musical attractions and from the time the curtain goes up until Grand Opera House—"Saved from the Sea," which will be presented at the Grand Opera House next week, is a melodrama that will hold the interest of any audience. All of its situations are exciting, and the lot of the play is interesting. It is based upon the usual story of an honest man's suffering caused by the villainy of another, who is incensed at the happiness of his victim. It is a love story that is well told, and that is enhanced by good scenery. That clever and talented young actress, Miss Laura Hulbert will be seen in the title role of Nancy Ellington, the heroine, supported by a company of capable and selected artists. Matinees will be given as usual on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Keith's Theatre—For the week commencing March 23 the vaudeville proper at Keith's will include such well known entertainers as Kathryn Osterman, in an act comedy sketch, entitled, "The Editor;" Elsie Fay, the bright particular star of "M'selle Awkins," is now doing a clever singing and dancing turn; the Quaker city quartet, one of the best known and most talented organizations of comedians, singers and instrumentalists in the business; George Felix an eccentric dancing and singing comedian and Lydia Barry, a pleasing soubrette, in a lively specialty; John Zimmer, an unusually clever juggler of small articles; Yackley and Bunnell, musical comedians, and Geo. H. Wood, monologue comedian and topical singer. The only "holdover" will be the sensational Culver bicycle Loop wheel, which has proven to be the greatest novelty for many years. The week of March 30, the leading feature of the program, will be Eugene Sandow, the noted apostle of physical culture.

"Hiawatha"

One of the most interesting spectacular productions ever given in Boston was that which opened Wednesday afternoon, March 18. For the first time in the experience of New England, Longfellow's master piece "Hiawatha" was interpreted by descendants of the men about whom the poem was written. There are about thirty-five of these Ojibway who play the principal parts in the musical drama of "Hiawatha." Then there are several white soloists, a chorus of sixty and an orchestra of forty-five pieces.

"Hiawatha," which will be performed in Mechanics building every afternoon and evening, until March 21. A series of special nights have been arranged including a Red Man's night for Saturday, March 21, a Dartmouth College night, a Harvard night in honor of Mr. Burton, the composer of "Hiawatha," and a Daughters of the Revolution night.

Automobile Show

On Monday last the automobile show of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association was inaugurated in Symphony hall, Boston, and it should prove to be an automobile exhibit in every sense of the word. Entries have been received from some 50 dealers in Boston, who collectively handle almost every known make of automobile, including many of the famous foreign cars. Not an old model will be shown, but instead everything of the 1903 vintage, which means the best that capital, ingenuity and mechanical ability can produce. The finest product of the builder and engineer, the victory of the master mind over various powers of propulsion will be exhibited in all their grandeur and the result cannot but be a revelation to the thousands who will visit the show during its progress. There can be no question from what is already known but what the exhibit will be the best of its kind in the country, not even excepting New York and Chicago.

easier in a few weeks. The Southern Pacific fight is very largely for effect; Wall Street Waterloos or Gettysburgs do not come often, and it is too soon since the Northern Pacific duel to have another permitted in Southern Pacific. The pretence of such a catastrophe is being adroitly used to serve other purposes.

Meanwhile, every fundamental influence remains as sound as ever. Domestic industry is enjoying a maximum of activity and our foreign trade is rapidly reviving. All these manifold forces are like huge springs whose working is temporarily repressed but which are bound eventually to exert their power upward.—Corey, Milliken & Co. letter

Letter to C O Tucker,

Newton.
Dear Sir: There are several ways of cheating in milk. An old-fashioned way is to water it. Nobody waters it now. A better way is to take out the cream—rich milk with the cream taken out is as good as poor milk with its cream all in. But we needn't go into particulars. You don't rob your milk and your customers.

Paint is as easy as milk to cheat with. Good paint is as rare as good milk; for human nature is much the same in milkmen and paint men. You are just and true with your milk; so are we with our paint. Devote Lead and Zinc is twice as good as mixed paints: There's twice as much butter in it.

Mr. J. T. Ladd, Cheraw, S. C., writes: When Mr. Evans painted his house with Devote Lead and Zinc, he figured on the basis of your claim that a gallon will cover 300 square feet, two coats. He had enough left to paint three large rooms, and was so pleased that he has used Devote Lead and Zinc on two other houses.

Yours truly,

it falls on the grand finale, the audience is entertained with musical numbers and fun of all kinds. Matinees will be given as usual on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. The attraction announced to follow "The Storks" is that popular actor, Otis Skinner, who has not been seen in Boston in several seasons, and who will present for the first time in that city, his production of "Lazarre."

Boston Music Hall—The coming week's attraction at the Boston Music Hall will be one that will appeal to all classes of theatregoers. The attraction will be Theodore Kremer's dramatic masterpiece, entitled "The Fatal Wedding." Wherever this play has been presented this season it has played to audiences that have been limited in size only by the capacity of the theatre where the attraction was being presented. It was presented in Boston earlier in the season where it met with such favor that the management decided upon bringing the play back to Boston for a return engagement and with the daily matinees all next week no one should fail to embrace the opportunity of witnessing this great melodrama

Horse Show

Reginald Vanderbilt and Alfred Vanderbilt the two young millionaire sportsmen of New York and Newport, have entered a large number of harness horses and polo ponies for the Boston Horse Show. This will be the first time the Vanderbilts have sought tan bark honors in Boston, although they have been prominent at other large shows on the circuit, including the National at Madison Square Garden and the yearly show at the Newport Casino. The show will be unusually strong this year in amateur exhibitors and some lively competitions are expected when the huge call sounds in Mechanics building on April 20. The advance list of entries from all sections of the country is very gratifying to the directors of the show, and all of the indications point to a fine week's sport.

known throughout the world as "the perfect man." It is announced that at the afternoon performances instead of the regular routine of heavy lifting, etc., Sandow will give a 20-minute demonstrative talk on physical culture, explaining how the various parts of the body may be developed in both sexes. This departure will be of particular value to women.

Tremont Theatre—Within a comparatively short time now, theatre patrons of Boston will enjoy the rare pleasure of greeting Mrs. Fiske in her great play, "Mary of Magdala." Mrs. Fiske closed her engagement of fifteen weeks at the Manhattan Theatre, New York, where she played continuously during that period to large and delighted audiences, on Feb. 23, and she will be seen at the Tremont Theatre, Monday, March 30th, in the course of her brief Spring tour in her great production. One of the remarkable things about "Mary of Magdala" has been the spontaneous praise it has received from all sources of public appreciation and intelligence. One of the secrets of the appeal of the play, aside from its great dramatic strength and the marvelous beauty of its picturing, is the work in it of Mrs. Fiske, who as the Magdalene far surpasses all of her former work as an actress.

"One of the most precocious and talented child actresses in the country today is 8 year old Beatrice Abbey who will appear in the title role, "Eight Cousins," by Louisa M. Alcott, as dramatized by Nella Whipple, at the Children's entertainment, Huntington Chambers, Boston, Saturday, March 21st, at 2.30. The cast will also include Boston's wonderful child actress, "Ada Rose," who will take the part of Prince Charlie, this actress is known far and wide for her wonderful beauty. There also will be some of the children's favorites, Juliette Day, Ruth Francis, Frankie Specht, May Green.

The State House and Symphony Hall have been rivals this week for the attention of automobilists and their friends. We believe that many of the measures before the legislature on this subject are of the "strike" order, and not in the interests of the public.

The automobile has come to stay and the public will have to adjust itself to the new conditions, as it did when electric street cars were first introduced.

Reasonable regulations as to speed and a complete system of registration and identification with a possible plan for licensing operators should be all that present conditions demand.

There is considerable speculation as to the attitude of the board of aldermen will assume towards the recent appointment of a captain of police.

The board of 1902 refused to make an appropriation for this office, and it is possible that some of the aldermen may decline to agree to grant an appropriation at this time. It is also possible that Captain Ryan may have to get along without a salary for a few weeks until the board shall appropriate or otherwise provide for his wages.

There is nothing but commendation for the promotion of Lieut. Ryan to the captaincy, all agreeing that by experience and ability, the new captain is well qualified for the honor.

NEW YORK PHYSICIAN'S GIFT TO NEWTON.

The greatest philanthropy is that which caters to the direct necessity. That giving which consists in supplying luxuries is criminal. The rescue of a drowning man, the clothing of the naked, the feeding of the starving, the relief of the suffering are examples of practical philanthropy. An eminent New York physician has treated successfully a great many kinds of diseases with a medicine, the formula for which he had carefully kept secret for years because he dare not trust its compounding to any but his own hands. The tremendous demand for his services has made it necessary to devise a method that will permit of a more general distribution of his famous prescription. In order that the high professional standing of this medicine may be maintained, but one reliable and reputable druggist in each town is allowed to dispense it. This method assures a thoroughly dependable method for supplying the needs of the public. The doctor calls his prescription VITONE TONIC. It instantly creates an appetite, tones the stomach and enriches the blood. Persons suffering from low vitality, lack of appetite and loss of nerve power will receive immediate and permanent benefit from the first dose. VITONE TONIC can be purchased for 75 cents per large bottle from FRED R. DURIN, Druggist, Newtonville.

Washington Letter.

Washington, March 16, 1903.

The republican members of the Senate have completed their program for the special session and hope to adjourn not later than the end of this week. The Panama Canal treaty will be read for amendment today, tomorrow there will be two hours of general debate and a vote will be taken. It is understood that the democrats will vote to amend the agreement to provide for absolute ownership by the United States of zone of land through which the canal will pass with the right to fortify it, and will favor the elimination of article IV which provides that under no circumstances will the United States acquire territory at the expense of Colombia or any other South American republic. Both of these amendments have been given careful consideration by the republican steering committee which subsequently determined to ratify the treaty as negotiated. In some respects the amendments were deemed desirable, but Secretary Hay advised the leaders of the Senate that any amendment would mean the failure of the treaty and the indefinite postponement of the canal and the changes were not deemed of sufficient importance to warrant that risk.

Democratic senators have insisted on an amendment to the Cuban treaty providing that it shall not go into operation until "approved by the Congress" and the republicans have agreed to accept such an amendment, such having already been favorably reported by the committee on Foreign Relations. The vote on the Cuban treaty, the ratification of which is regarded as assured, will be taken as soon after the approval of the Panama treaty as possible and will be followed by immediate adjournment. A hearing has been had on the Hay-Bond Newfoundland treaty but there is no intention of reporting it out of committee and the best authorities in the Senate say it will never be ratified.

President Roosevelt is much chagrined at the amendment to be attached to the Cuban treaty and is seriously considering the Fifty-eighth Congress in special session next November, as soon as practicable after the fall elections. He characterizes the amendment accepted by the republicans as "a concession to the enemies of Cuban reciprocity" and holds that under the circumstances he would be fully justified in calling a special session immediately. The leaders of the party, however, would oppose a special session at any time before the fall elections, but there are many good reasons why a special session should be called at that time. Next year will be a critical year and an early adjournment of Congress, in order that the campaign may not be interfered with, will be desired. The democrats propose to engage in a long tariff discussion and were Congress to meet a few weeks before the first Monday in December they might be accommodated without interfering with the public business. The President believes that the Cuban treaty should be put in operation before this year's Cuban sugar crop is marketed, but this argument is met by leading senators with the assertion that the sugar buyers will anticipate the reduction in the tariff and the only effect of delay in modifying the tariff schedules will be to keep Cuban sugar a little longer in bonded warehouse. Mr. Roosevelt's argument that no time should be lost before securing control of the Cuban trade, however, seems unanswerable.

There is every prospect of important financial legislation at the next session of Congress. The Senate has adopted a resolution, reported by Senator Aldrich, authorizing the committee on Finance to inquire into the revenue, and investigate, "customs, internal revenue, coinage, etc." It is known that there will be no attempt to modify or change the tariff schedules, and, in view of the failure of the Aldrich financial bill in the Senate and of the Fowler currency bill in the House, it is believed that an effort will be made by the Finance committee to frame a general financial bill which will remedy some of the defects in the present system. It is generally believed that the Fowler bill, which provides for a fiat currency, could never pass the Senate, that body having on several occasions put it off on record as opposed to fiat currency. It is also recalled that the last successful financial measure was framed during a recess of Congress, a joint committee of both houses meeting for the purpose at Atlantic City.

The President has determined upon a quiet but thorough reorganization of the government departments and to that end has called upon five of the younger heads of bureaus. Mr. Roosevelt is a great believer in young men and all of those invited to confer with him on the systemization and coordination of the government work are known as representing the younger and more energetic element in the service. They are Charles D. Walcott, representing the Interior Department, General William Crozier, representing the War Department, Admiral Francis T. Bowles, representing the Navy Department, Gifford Pinchot, representing the Agricultural Department and James R. Garfield, representing the Department of Commerce and Labor. It is anticipated that a material saving in time and money and the duplication of work will be effected as a result of the report of this committee.

The Anthracite Coal Strike Commission is still in session but is rapidly bringing its labors to a close and expects to make its report to the President the latter part of this week. No indication of the nature of the report is obtainable and it may be said that all dispatches purporting to outline the findings of the Commission have been pure guess work.

The Secretary of the Interior has announced five irrigation projects which have been definitely settled and one other which will probably be selected in the near future. Those selected are the Sweetwater dam, Wyoming, the Milk river project, Montana, the Gunnison Tunnel, Colorado, the Truckee project, Nevada, and the Salt River reservoir, Arizona. The project still in abeyance is the Gray Bull reservoir, and several others are being seriously considered. Secretary Hitchcock has authorized the expenditure of $450,000 during the ensuing year on further investigations, borings, etc. The estimated cost of the projects already authorized is $7,000,000, and it is estimated that they will irrigate 600,000 acres. As soon as these lands are irrigated they will be sold at $1.25 per acre plus the cost of irrigation.

A MARINE AUTOCRAT.

The Captain of the Battleship and His Absolute Authority.

Over the vast establishment rules the captain in supreme and isolated authority. All his accomplishments must be those of the seaman, for he directs the movements of the ship in all evolutions, and his decision upon all professional points is final. His responsibility at all times is grave and exacting. In time of war it will strain the stoutest nerves. In the hour of battle it is nothing short of appalling when he stands alone in his conning tower, having control of all the tremendous forces lying latent in his ship only to be released at the proper moment by a touch of his hand. He is the guiding spirit of an enormous projectile of 15,000 tons that rushes through the water at a speed, it may be, of fifteen knots, and he knows that the slightest mistake of his hand or heart may mean a national disaster.

But besides being the naval and military chief of the establishment he is a lawyer—a kind of justice of the peace, as it were, who holds court every morning, investigates reports of misdemeanors and assigns punishment to the guilty. The delinquents are brought to the "mast"—the quarter deck—with their accusers. Both sides are heard, and swift judgment usually follows. In this capacity it will be noted that the captain is court, judge and jury. Not infrequently he acts as clergyman and as such is the bishop of his diocese, acknowledging no ecclesiastical superior, reading the service on Sundays, officiating at the burial of his dead and in the old days occasionally marrying lovers.—Lieutenant Commander Gleaves in World's Work.

A Case of Interpretation.

"What shall we do with the prisoner?" demanded the spokesman of the mob. "Do thou, O royal chamberlain, haste to the presence of his majesty and learn his wish."

The royal chamberlain hurried to the presence and bowed himself thrice to the floor; then he asked the monarch's pleasure regarding the desperate outlaw.

"Away with him!" said the king in a loud, harsh voice.

But the chamberlain was something of a humorist, and when he returned to the mob he laughingly announced that in regard to the misdoings with the prisoner the king had said only that it was "a way with him."

Whereupon the mob reluctantly released their quarry.

But in trying to explain the joke to the obtuse king the royal chamberlain became confused and completely lost his head.—Baltimore American.

Color of Judas' Hair.

In very early times all pictures of Judas were shown with great shocks of red hair falling down well on the shoulders. This and the fact that the Judas in the "Miracle Plays" was provided with a red hirsute worked the superstition of the middle ages up to such a degree that it was actually unsafe for a red haired person to appear in company. Seeing that things were coming to a serious pass, writers of all classes began to rebuke and denounce "the senseless prejudice against those of lively colored hair." Cyrano de Bergerac in his "States and Empires of the Sun" boldly praised and glorified the despised color in the following words: "A brave head covered with red hair is nothing else but the sun in the midst of his rays, yet many speak ill of it because few have the honor to be so."

Some Examples of "Nerve."

In a recent big libel case the foreman of the jury received a letter from a publican, apparently otherwise sane, asking him to insure that the jury should find for the defendant because he had a heavy bet on the result, and this astonishing epistle was read in court. It is interesting to note that the writer lost his bet anyhow. Equally bland was the request once made to Mr. Balfour during his premiership to have dismissed from the commission of the peace a justice who had very properly sentenced the author of the request, a notorious ruffian, to a stiff term of imprisonment for sending begging letters.—London Answers.

Cautions.

A lawyer happened to be acquainted with a juror in a petty civil case, and he met him during a recess of the court. The lawyer was just "lightning up," and under ordinary circumstances he would have offered the other a cigar unhesitatingly, but it occurred to him that it might not look right.

"I suppose," he said guardedly, "that a cigar would not influence your verdict?"

The juror was equally cautious.

"A good one wouldn't," he replied.

"But a poor one might prejudice me."

He got a good cigar.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Poor Mamma.

The Dear Child—Oh, Mrs. Bloom,

when did you get back?

Mrs. Bloom—Bless you, dear, I was not away anywhere. What made you think so?

The Dear Child—I thought you were. I heard my mamma say that you were at loggerheads with your husband for over a week.

Absolutely Past Hope.

"She is the most inconsistent woman I ever knew."

"Never does what she ought to or what you expect, eh?"

"That is just it. Sometimes she does. She is inconsistently inconsistent."

Beware of the man who offers you advice at the expense of a mutual friend.

None are less eager to learn than they who know nothing.—Sword.

Pretty, but so Thin!

"Doctor," said our clerk, as a customer went out, "that woman would be a beauty if she were not so horribly thin."

"Yes," said the doctor, "she is really ill; most thin women are ill."

Unusual thinness may mean worry, extra work, care of the sick, nervousness, dyspepsia, bowel troubles, or the first sign of a serious disease like consumption.

The best thing we have found for thin people, whatever the cause, is Vinol.

To combine the medicinal properties of cod liver oil with organic iron in such a powerful and yet well-tasting preparation, was a great discovery. If you try it and are not pleased, we pay the money back.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

Boston, March 18,

A week makes a great difference in the aspect of things, and this is particularly true of the Great and General Court in the middle of a session. Since the last communication in this series was sent to the Graphic, there has been an earthquake, and out of the upheaval has come an order to investigate election methods in Boston which seem likely to be very far-reaching in its consequences. Everybody is sorry for Mr. Kiley of Boston, a young Democrat of fine presence and great promise, but who seems to be a scapegoat for some bigger politicians than he, if nothing worse. Evidence has already been presented to the committee on election laws, though not under oath, of a most damaging character, and Mr. Luce of Somerville was abundantly justified in demanding the right of summoning witnesses for his committee. The subject having once been broached, all sorts of evidence is accumulating to indicate that the State House is situated geographically in the midst of a ward where corruption of the most flagrant nature has been permitted on election day. Some think the investigation will lengthen out the session a month; but this is not at all certain, for very likely the members will conclude that the best thing under the circumstances will be to pass restrictive legislation with as little friction as possible. But there was trouble enough on Thursday and Friday to last for an entire session.

The petition of the aged ex-Governor of the Commonwealth, Hon. William Claflin and many others, for the prevention of the practice of vivisection excepting under humane conditions, was given a hearing by the committee on probate and chancery on Monday. This measure always greatly interests Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward, and she was present to make an earnest appeal in behalf of the measure. A peculiar interest always attaches to the appearance of Mrs. Ward at the State House on these measures, because it is well understood that she makes a physical effort greater in behalf of the suffering animals than for almost any other cause which appeals to her. As has been the case in recent years, Hon. Asa P. French appears for Mrs. Ward and those associated with her in this crusade. It seems as though there were force to the arguments of both sides in this controversy, and that the ground of agreement must be between the two extremes. For this reason it is wise in the petitioners to present a moderate bill; and meanwhile the agitation of the question cannot fail to do good.

On Thursday of last week the committees on metropolitan affairs and water supply heard City Solicitor Slocum on the three bills to provide that Newton may be excluded from the metropolitan water district until she finds it necessary to take water from the system; that she may be compensated for damages from digging up her streets by the water and sewerage board; and that in future no work shall be done in the limits of the city by the Water and Sewerage Board unless first proved by the Mayor of Newton. These bills do not meet the approval of the members of the Water and Sewerage Board and its Secretary, Hon. W. N. Davenport, put up a mild opposition on Albany road at Boylston street in Newton has been enacted in both branches and is now in the hands of Gov. Bates.

Today and on Friday Representative Dana and his associates on the committee on Corporation Laws will give hearings on a number of petitions which have been introduced, which seemed to be more appropriate for consideration by this committee than by any other.

When these hearings have been concluded the committee can continue uninterrupted its work of preparing amendments to the draft prepared by the Governor's Committee.

The Railroad and Street Railway Committees sitting jointly have adversely reported upon W. H. Coolidge's petition for a consolidation or revision of the laws relating to railroads and street railways, but they are still waiting for an opinion from the Attorney General as to whether railroads with foreign charters, like the Albany and New Haven roads, can under these charters purchase street railway stock. If the Attorney General decides that they may do so, the chances for a bill to permit all railroads to do the same are good. Mr. Coolidge's argument is that the Boston and Maine system, which he represents, is the only great operating road in Massachusetts by which may not purchase street railway stock.

Mr. Warren and his associates on the Ways and Means Committee are now considering the extremely important question of reporting a bill to permit the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to sell its property on the Back Bay and move into the suburbs. Under the deed of gift which the institute acquired the land from the Commonwealth it reverts to the State when it ceases to be used by the institution; and what is desired is an act releasing all claims of the Commonwealth upon this land, so that it may be sold and the money used in the purchase of land elsewhere and the erection of buildings.

Yesterday the judiciary committee reported against the petition of Mayor Weeks for a law to reduce the rate of interest on damages recovered in consequence of taking land under right of eminent domain.

Boston, March 18,

What might have proved a disastrous fire, had it not been for the prompt and efficient efforts of the firemen, and the fire proof qualities of the building, was first discovered in the basement of Mr. William O. Colburn's Dry Goods store, about quarter before three, last Saturday morning. The firemen bravely fought the flames and confined the fire within the brick walls on either side, so that the post office on the one side and Mr. Valente's fruit store on the other, were uninjured. As the dense smoke arose, it filled the hotel corridors and caused much alarm among its occupants, who were aroused and making their way toward the stairs; one of the table waiters, Miss Minnie M. Jordan, was the first to discover smoke, and descending the fire escape at the back of the building, ran to the hose house and gave the alarm.

Before the first call had completed its round, the firemen had two streams of water pouring into the store and basement. Steamer 3 from the Centre also had streams of water upon the fire in fourteen minutes from the time they left their engine house.

Capt. John S. Williams of Chemical B was badly overcome by smoke while directing his men and medical attendance was necessary to restore him to consciousness.

The store was totally burned out and the hotel was badly damaged by smoke and water, but with the exception of Saturday's breakfast the proprietor has been able to furnish regular meals and accommodate all patrons.

The rumor is current that it caught from over heated boilers, but owing to the mild unseasonable weather, there had been little fire in the heaters, and an examination afterwards showed that the boiler room, which adjoins the basement where the fire started, was hardly touched by the flames. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The night patrol passed round the building, as is his custom, about eleven o'clock and saw nothing wrong, and again at two there were no signs of fire or smoke. The losses are believed to be covered by insurance.

Police Paragraphs.

John W. Slamin of 14 Pearl court was arraigned Friday morning in court, charged with having broken into Wilbur Bros.' restaurant and stolen $25, and of having committed several other recent crimes in Newton. The arresting officers were unable to secure a complaint against him on any of the cases and he was charged with vagrancy. He was found guilty and sent to the Concord reformatory.

John Higgins aged 40, and Patrick F. Higgins, aged 33, of Alden court, West Newton, were arraigned in court Tuesday morning on complaint of Patrolmen Dolan and David Neagle, charged with disturbance. According to the testimony, it is alleged that the two made things lively Saturday night at their home and that the affair wound up by John hurling a lighted lamp at Patrick. Three stitches were taken by a physician in the latter's head, and both men were locked up. They were found guilty and given three months in the house of correction. Patrick appealed.

Lieut. John Ryan was appointed to the position of captain by order of Mayor John W. Weeks Monday morning. Lieut. Ryan will fill the vacancy created two years ago by the resignation of Capt. Chas. Huettis and will assume office at once. Capt. Ryan was born in West Newton and was appointed a patrolman by Mayor Fowle, Jan. 21, 1878, when the force numbered but 4 men. On Jan. 22, 1891, he was made a sergeant and was given a lieutenant's Mayor Cobb on Jan. 18, 1898. He holds the distinction of having served under every chief of police of Newton, and under all but two of its mayors. In point of service he is one of the oldest men on the force, and several weeks ago observed the 25th anniversary of his appointment, together with Patrolmen N. F. Bosworth and Robert S. Harrison, two other veterans of the department. He has an enviable war record, having served through the civil war and in many of the Indian campaigns.

—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Garland, a resident of this place for the last sixteen years, passed away last Sunday morning at her home on Summer street. She was the widow of the late James P. Garland, of Epping, N. H. For more than 25 years she was in the home of her sister, the late Mrs. C. F. Rogers of Newton, 16 years ago she returned to her girlhood home in this place. Soon after, the disease which had slightly impaired her sight, developed rapidly and in a short time she was blind. This, with the almost total loss of hearing, would have made the last fifteen years of her life very unhappy but for the cheerful resignation with which she met her misfortunes. Mrs. Garland was in her seventy-fifth year. She leaves beside her sister, Miss S. J. Freeman, who has cared for her so faithfully since her return to this place, a brother, Mr. Colburn Freeman of Pasadena, Cal. The scripture reading, prayer and poem, "There's a Wideness in God's Mercy," were feelingly given by Rev. A. S. Gilbert, pastor of the Second Baptist church of Newton. Beautiful floral offerings attested the love of many friends. The interment was in the family lot in the Newton cemetery.

On the petition of the Newton & Boston Street Railway Co. for license to locate 4 steam engines and boilers on Homer street, a hearing was ordered for April 20 before the board.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

These reports were received:

CLAIMS: Recommending settlement of claim of City of Boston for $430, and recommending settlement of claim of James Simpson of $42.53 for land damages.

FINANCE: Recommending $2,075 for equipment of Science Department, High school; recommending $400 for laboratory supplies for High school; recommending grant of $108,894.37 for city expenses to April 15; approving recommendations of Public Works Committee for sewer construction in Chestnut and Oak streets and for water mains in Bellevue, Groveland and Stearns streets, and approving recommendation of Mayor as to elimination of sewer assessment from temporary debt.

PUBLIC FRANCHISES: Favorable to relocations to N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. in Park, Sargent, Crafts, Harvard, Mill, Eldredge, Walnut, Bellevue, Austin, Tremont, Nonantum, Bowers, Willard, Watertown, Nevada, Chapel, Adams, Washington, Elmwood, Ward, Nahant, Dedham streets, Hunnewell, Hyde, Waverley avenues and Elm road; favorable to attachments to same company on Walnut street and Newtonville avenue, and favorable to pole locations on Boylston street to N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co.

PUBLIC WORKS: Recommending sewer construction in Chestnut and Oak streets; recommending taking land for sewer in Cherry place, Adams avenue, Foster street, Hale street, and recommending water mains in Bellevue, Groveland and Stearns streets.

RULES, ETC.: Submitting ordinance increasing number of library trustees from 5 to 7.

These reports were adopted: CLAIMS: Recommending leave to withdraw on claims of W. F. Bacon for damages on account of fire on Boylston street; recommending leave to withdraw on claim of Eliza V. Crowell for damage on account of tax title; reporting no action necessary on petition of J. D. MacCarthy for damages received on Montvale road.

FINANCE: Approving recommendation of Mayor as to serial bonds.

PUBLIC FRANCHISES: Favorable to granting Ira Locke license for 1 billiard and 3 pool tables, and reporting no action necessary as to better street car accommodations from corner of River and Lexington streets.

RULES, ETC.: Recommending leave to withdraw on proposed curfew ordinance and recommending leave to withdraw on petition to change ward lines between Wards 5 and 6.

The majority report of the Committee on Claims recommending an appropriation of $650 to indemnify Chief Tarbox for expenses in the recent police investigation was received, Aldermen Ensign and Saltonstall reserving their rights to oppose the matter when it came before the board.

The recommendation of leave to withdraw from the Committee on Claims on the claim of Ella C. Crane for damages on account of construction of Commonwealth avenue at Rowe street was adopted after Alderman Johnson had called attention to the injustice done Mrs. Crane.

When the majority report from the committee on Public Franchises favorable to granting a location for poles on Boylston street to the N. & W. Gas Light Co. was presented, Alderman Webster referred to the communication of the Mayor and wished the matter tabled until the question as to lighting the street had been finally determined.

Alderman H. B. Day opposed the motion, although willing the matter should be tabled for a short time. He stated that he was assured that action in the matter of street lighting would be taken in the near future.

Alderman Webster believed the interests of the city would be imperilled if the order was adopted and that we would prejudice our case if a location was granted before the lighting of the street was settled.

The whole matter was to be submitted to the Supreme Court and would be heard in the fall.

Alderman Day's motion to lay on the table was adopted.

ORDERS ADOPTED.

Orders granting the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. relocations for poles in Park, Sargent, Crafts, Harvard, Mill, Eldredge, Walnut, Bellevue, Austin, Tremont, Nonantum, Bowers, Willard, Watertown, Nevada, Chapel, Adams, Washington, Elmwood, Ward, Nahant, Dedham streets, Hunnewell, Hyde, Waverley avenues, and Elm road; granting the same company attachments on Walnut street and Newtonville avenue, and pole locations on Boylston street; authorizing sewer construction in Chestnut and Oak streets; authorizing water mains in Bellevue, (330,) Groveland ($210,) and Stearns ($340) streets; assigning hearings on April 6 for taking land for sewer in Cherry place, Adams avenue, Foster and Hale streets, were read and adopted.

An order granting $108,894.37 for city expenses to April 15 was also adopted after brief questions by Alderman Saltonstall.

Orders appropriating $430 for paying claim of the City of Boston and appropriating $42.53 for settlement of claim of James Simpson were adopted without reference on explanation of Alderman Mellen.

Alderman Ensign questioned the order appropriating $2475 for equipment of Science department and for laboratory supplies at the High school saying that he believed the School Committee ought to make up its budget in the fall instead of coming to the board with these requests. He was well aware that certain matters might require prompt action, but he hoped the school board in the future would make the budget to cover as much as possible.

Alderman Lothrop reminded the board that the present school committee was not the same as presented the budget last fall and said that the Finance Committee believed these expenditures were fully justified.

Alderman Brown said that the School Committee could not anticipate this expense, as the higher schools and colleges had changed their standards of admission and Newton must meet the emergency.

Alderman Mellen said that this was a case where the general rule of requiring all matters to be placed in the budget did not apply. He had been surprised to learn that Newton had not kept pace with the other cities and towns in the state in its equipment for electrical study. It had absolutely nothing to teach dynamic electricity.

The order was then adopted. An order appropriating $650 to indemnify Chief Tarbox for expenses incurred in the recent police investigation was referred to the Committee on Finance.

An ordinance increasing the number of library trustees from 5 to 7 was passed to be enrolled after Alderman Brown had stated that the present trustees were old and respected citizens who did not give the attention to this work of the library that it demanded.

A resolve expressing the appreciation of the board for the good order maintained at the Read Fund lectures by the police department was adopted and at 9.27 the board adjourned.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

Boston, March 25. If we could only get rid of the investigations going on at the State House, the committee work would be in a very satisfactory condition indeed. So successfully has this been pushed along, that the House began the week with a new order limiting speeches in debate to ten minutes, with the exception of the speech of the member in charge of a report, who is permitted to consume twenty minutes in opening. This may be considered the beginning of the home stretch, the next element being the shutting down of the time for receiving final reports, which will come April 8, and following that the adoption of an order for double sessions of the House morning and afternoon, to be succeeded by the grind which will continue daily until prorogation day, somewhere along in June.

Mr. Dana was called to the chair of the Speaker last week, serving to the satisfaction of all concerned during a session. Today the committee on the Revision of Corporation Laws, of which Mr. Dana is House Chairman, gives its final hearings. It will be a relief to the members to be rid of public sessions, as they can then devote themselves to the work of drafting a bill for the next two weeks. On Friday last the House postponed until today the resolve substituted through Senator Skinner's skillful action, providing $100,000 as an appropriation for Massachusetts representation to the Louisiana Purchase expedition at St. Louis. Before this action was taken Mr. Parker of Springfield, acting chairman of the House Ways and Means committee, moved to amend the measure by restoring the provision for expending $50,000 as recommended by the joint Ways and Means committee, when the measure was referred to them as a matter of secondary reference. Evidently there will be quite a battle over this subject, in which Representative Warren will have a chance to defend the report of his committee against the attitude of the Senator from his district.

The House has ordered to a third reading the Luce bill to provide for joint party caucuses and for precinct caucuses in Boston. The committee on the judiciary has reported leave to withdraw on the petition of Mayor John W. Weeks of Newton, for a reduction of the rate of interest on damages recovered in consequence of taking land under the right of eminent domain.

The committee on Metropolitan Affairs still has a number of matters upon which to give hearings, including the proposition for the formation of a new county, to include Boston and the surrounding cities and towns, which of course would take in Newton. The hearing on this matter comes on Thursday next. Meanwhile the committee on the Liquor Law has been hearing a discussion of the question of district location, and has been fairly warned that no town or city will ever unite with Boston so long as the present license system is in vogue, while so far as the county proposition is concerned, there seems to be nothing indicating a high pitch of enthusiasm in its favor.

The Metropolitan committee has not reported on the bill for taking Downing's and Chandler's points in Newton and for a boulevard in that city, but on the various petition of Mayor Weeks as to work by the Metropolitan water and sewerage board in Newton, has reported reference to the next General Court.

The report of the Metropolitan Park Commission, of which Mr. E. B. Haskell of Newton is a member, is expected to come in this week. Meanwhile the Metropolitan committee is giving careful study to the boulevard and parkway question, and it is expected will report a single bill upon about forty parkway petitions which are before it. The committee on the liquor law has held a hearing on the proposition that liquor may be sold by hotels until twelve o'clock midnight. Against this Colonel E. H. Haskell of Newton very earnestly protested.

Nothing has yet been heard from the committee on Probate and Chancery on Mrs. Ward's anti-vivisection bill.

Practical Politics has an interesting article on the types of legislators and we quote therefrom: "The men of the current year in whose hands rests the power to make or mar proposed legislation are already becoming pretty well known in the state house. The six weeks during which the legislature has been in session have given a pretty fair opportunity to make this sizing up, which is always exceedingly interesting."

The members of the legislature who are able to do things are divided by agreement into two classes; namely, those who work on the members, and those who work on the committees—the spokesmen, as it were, and the men behind the spokesmen.

This may seem a rather fine distinction, but it is a just one. Callender of Boston and Dana of Newton illustrating it perhaps better than any others. Callender is a spokesman pure and simple. He gains his strength wholly by the impression which he makes in the house in debate, and the votes come to him in that way, or not at all. Dana, on the other hand, stands forth as the particular representative of the working element, slow to speech, and plenteous in silence.

Some of Mr. Dana's colleagues in the board of aldermen will not wholly agree with this view of Mr. Dana.

Mr. Smith was a native of Guilford, N. H., and came to Boston young, and secured a position as salesman with B. J. Greely, a manufacturer of suspenders. After a few years Mr. Smith's trade had so increased that his firm could not fill his orders, so he became a manufacturer of suspenders and continued in the business for more than 30 years, till his death.

He was believed to be the oldest manufacturer of suspenders in the United States, and had taken out a number of patents on those articles. He had lived for 20 years at 76 Boyd street, Newton.

Funeral services were held from the family residence Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. William H. Davis, pastor of Eliot church, officiating and the interment was at Laurel hill cemetery, Reading. The pallbearers were Messrs. W. H. Bartlett, Waldo Conant, George C. Dunne and G. P. Atkins.

M., of Natick, Gettysburg commandery of Newton, the Railroad Agents' Association, the New England Order of Protection, and several other organizations, were present. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, and included several handsome set pieces from the foregoing organizations.

The services were conducted by the Rev. Charles M. Southgate, assisted by the Rev. Thomas W. Bishop. At the close, a service was conducted by Meriden lodge according to the Masonic rites.

The burial was at the Newton cemetery. The pallbearers were W. F. Hadlock, C. C. Henry, Frederick Johnson, and G. E. Keyes.

LITERARY NOTES.

The April Cosmopolitan is a carefully balanced magazine. Chief place is given to a striking article on "The Americanization of the Canadian Northwest," written by William R. Stewart. A personal sketch of Bjornstjerne Bjornson, the prophet-poet of Norway, is most entertainingly written, and is illustrated with a number of beautiful photographs of the poet's home, "To Love or To Be Loved," is a philosophical essay, by Lavinia Hart, in the course of which she shows that to love means increase of physical beauties—an end which may also be gained by physical exercise, is shown in the same number by Bernard MacFadden, in an article entitled "Health Made and Preserved by Daily Exercise." Dr. Geo. F. Shears writes on "Medicine," as part of the series, "Making Choice of a Profession." "Famous Cures and Humbugs of Europe," is by the last Julian Ralph. "Romances of the World's Great Mines," (Calumet and Hecla), by S. E. Moffett. There are also two sketches—one of the great financier, Jacob H. Schiff; and the other on the sugar king, H. O. Havemeyer. Field-marshal Viscount Wolseley, K. P.; H. G. Wells, Henry Seton Merriman, Senmas MacManus, and several other well known writers contribute to this number of the Cosmopolitan, which is particularly remarkable for the variety of its fiction.

Colonial Theatre—Klaw & Erlanger certainly made a master move in arranging with Messrs. Rich, Harris and Charles Frohman for an unlimited booking of their production of the great Drury Lane spectacle, "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," at the Colonial Theatre, Boston. It is now in its eighth week, and the manner which theatregoers are crowding that playhouse to enjoy its charms warrants the statements that a good many more weeks will be required to exhaust its popularity. The management has so arranged it that seats may be secured three weeks in advance, giving theatregoers of this vicinity who have made up their mind to witness this glorious stage spectacle plenty of time to write ahead and book their seats. Otherwise they would very likely find it a difficult matter to get satisfactory ones if they waited until the last moment. Matinees are given on Wednesdays and Saturdays at the Colonial during the run of this attraction.

Grand Opera House—One of the most stupendous melodramatic productions that ever toured the country, "The Convict's Daughter," will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House, Boston, next week. It is not one of those worn out, weather-beaten plays, but entirely original and up to date in every detail, and its success is already established. A large, competent and expensive company is required to give an adequate interpretation of the various characters. Special attention is directed to the scenic splendor and startling realism. Matinees will be given as usual on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Majestic Theatre—An unusual pleasure is promised the lovers of legitimate stage art at the Majestic Theatre, when Otis Skinner commences a two weeks' engagement there, commencing next Monday evening in a dramatization of Mary Hallwood Catherwood's celebrated novel "Lazarre." Mr. Skinner holds a place quite apart from the average entertainer, having come to the front rank of actors by hard work and unusual ability, after a long and faithful apprenticeship. The play is said to be such that the popular actor will lose no prestige as a provider of excellent entertainment. "Lazarre" has taken its comparative position among the plays of the season, a fact which will make its presentation at the Majestic of greater interest. During Mr. Skinner's engagement the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given.

Tremont Theatre "Mary of Magdala," the drama in which Mrs. Fiske is to appear at the Tremont Theatre for the three weeks beginning March 30, is pronounced a remarkable achievement in both dramatic literature and stage setting. It appeals to every class of theatregoers, and has also drawn great numbers of persons who do not habitually attend the theatre. Paul Heyse has written a powerful and impressive story and Mrs. Fiske has staged it with a lavishness and care surpassing anything the American stage has known. More than two years were spent in preparation for the production and every detail of costuming, architecture and accessories is absolutely correct and extremely beautiful. There has been an extraordinary advance sale of seats and the Boston engagement

Letter to James Ford,

Dear Sir: We hear you're doing a good business, and we know already, without you telling us, that you use good paint and do good work. We've got a big business too—been at it 149 years—making good paint, best paint in the world, Devco Lead and Zinc. "Fewer gallons wears longer".

that's the reason in short. It takes fewer gallons of Devco Lead and Zinc than of mixed paints to cover a house, and it wears longer than lead and oil or any mixed paint.

Smith & Wilber, Cambridge Springs, Pa., writes:

One of our painters says Devco is the best paint for a painter to use when taking work by the job, as it goes farther and covers better than any paint he ever used.

Here's the experience everybody has with it. The dealer who sells Devco gets the bulk of the paint business of his town. The painter who paints Devco gets the painting of his town.

Yours truly,

F. W. Devco & Co.,

The department has authorized four additional clerks at $600 each service to begin April 1st. Three of these clerks will be assigned for duty at Newton, Newtonville, West Newton and the fourth will probably be at the main office at Newton Centre. Applications has also been made for additional carriers but no action has been taken.

promises to be remarkable in every respect.

Boston Music Hall—Next week's attraction at Boston Music Hall is one that should appeal to all classes of theatregoers, especially those who enjoy a bright, clean, wholesome play of home life. The play is "The Night Before Christmas," which has met with marked favor in every city in the United States in which it has been presented this season. The play will be presented by a splendid company which includes Elmer Grandin, John C. Carlyle, James B. Martin, Pickering Brown, Frank Bryan, Chas. G. Wilson, James J. Boyd, James E. Nichols, Joseph Graham, John T. Thomas, Frank Clark, William Lewis, F. B. Henderson, Ida M. Nelson, Marie Kinzie, Marie Glover Clifton, Alice Clifton, Emily Clifton, Eva Clifton, Augusta Harris, Edith Jansen and Emma Morton.

Keith's Theatre—Sandow, the greatest athlete the world has ever known, the "Physically perfect man" is to be the leading attraction at Keith's popular vaudeville theatre, Boston, the week commencing March 30, giving exhibitions afternoon and evenings of his marvelous muscular development and strength, and also demonstrated talks as to the upbuilding of the body will prove of value to both sexes. Some of the entertainers in the same bill are: Horace Goldin, famous magician; George Evans, blackface funmaker and singer, author of "In the Good Ol' Summer Time"; Lotta Gladstone, monologue comedienne; the Baggenheims, juggling and contortion comedians, who break quantities of crockery during their act; and Jones and Sutton, "real con" singers and dancers. It will be one of the biggest bills of the winter season.

The regular meeting of the Newton Monday Evening Club will be held next Monday evening at their residence of Mr. George F. Coppins on Centre street.

Financial.

Speculative sentiment is getting less pessimistic, and the short interest that has not covered is not so confident of lower prices. The monetary situation, which caused so much apprehension, is looking much brighter, and it is believed that the worst is over and that marked improvement will be shown during the next two months.

The general prosperity of the whole country, and particularly the earnings of the railroad and industrial corporations, strengthens us in our belief that the next great movement will be an advancing one. There are many factors on the surface at present that tend to keep all but professional traders out of the market, but none are likely to cause any serious trouble. The fact that the public is not in the market shows conclusively that stocks are in strong hands, and upon favorable monetary developments much higher prices will be recorded. Curtis and Sederquist letter.

There are almost as many signs of renaissance and new growth in the world of speculation as in the outside world of nature just now. It is an ancient axiom that security prices are pretty apt to keep pace with the sap as it mounts in the tree; and circumstances are so shaped this spring that the adage has a better chance than usual to justify itself.

We have had all along a financial and industrial situation of unexampled strength and solidity which has enjoyed augmentation rather than suffered impairment of its resources; while at the same time there have been at work temporary and somewhat artificial concomitant influences, such as the monetary contraction, which have depressed security prices to an abnormally low level. As spring goes on, the resilient force of this naturally buoyant situation is bound to increase and overcome what even factitious bear pressure may be applied.

Money is slowly growing easier. The drift of funds is toward the East and in consequence of the recent heavy merchandise movement westward should prove of large proportions. General industrial indications are as bright as ever. That the Steel Trust has more orders on its books than ever before is conclusive evidence that no derangement of the fabric is yet evident.—Corey, Milliken & Co. letter.

Street Railway Notes.

It is announced that when the Boston & Worcester Street Railway begins operation early in June, a sliding scale of wages will go into effect. New men will receive twenty cents an hour, and wages will be gradually increased after one year of service until a maximum rate of twenty-five cents an hour is reached. The latter rate will be paid to men who have been steadily employed by the company ten years or more.

The report of the Committee on Claims in favor of an appropriation of $650 to indemnify Chief Tarbox, for expenses of the recent police investigation is a fair solution of the matter. The amount is based upon a payment of $50 a day for the 8 days of trial and $250 for preparation of the case. The Chief states that his expenses are over $1300, but the above amount seems ample in the opinion of good lawyers who have knowledge of the case.

It is true that the liability of the city in this matter is not clear, and that the law bearing upon cases of a similar nature, but not quite the same, leaves the entire subject to the discretion of the aldermen, but as we have pointed out before, city officials ought not to be personally responsible for expenses of defending themselves from frivolous charges of irresponsible citizens, otherwise it is possible to not only keep our city officials in hot water all the time, but to absolutely force the resignation of some by a series of petty persecutions.

If the board of aldermen are to pass resolutions of appreciation for the simple and proper performance of duty by its officials, as it has done in regard to the maintenance of order at the Read Fund lectures, it will find considerable work to do in that line. The passage of resolutions of this character are not only unnecessary but detract from the value of other resolutions where the dignity of the city demands such action.

The Chief of Police has been granted permission to appear with counsel before the Finance Committee when that body considers the Chief's claim for indemnity for expenses of counsel during the recent police investigation. This raises the interesting question as to the payment for the counsel before the committee.

The policy of increasing the number of trustees of the Free Library because some of the present trustees do not do their duty cannot be commended. The delinquent trustees should be courteously requested to resign.

SCHOOL BOARD.

The regular monthly meeting was held on Wednesday evening, Messrs. Bothfield, Tucker, Crehore, Morton, Bassett, Travis, Goddard, Boynton and Knowlton being present. Mr. Crehore was chosen chairman pro tem.

Supt. Fifield in his monthly report notes that the school buildings will be thoroughly cleaned during the Easter vacation.

He recommends that expert assistance be called in to criticize the work and instruct the teachers in the matter of penmanship.

He reports the new Mason building in such shape as to make it possible to hold the June graduation exercises in its hall, but expresses doubts as to the possibility of using the Burr school for the fall term.

Susan H. Lane of the Eliot school, was granted leave of absence to June 26 with salary, and Loessa C. Ford of the Jackson school was granted a continued leave of absence in a similar manner.

The Woman's Club of Newton Centre was granted the use of the Rice building for six weeks during the summer for a vacation school.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Bassett, Tucker and Knowlton was appointed to represent the school committee in opposing the bill before the legislature to give the mayor a veto power over expenditures by the school committee and the committee adjourned.

Capt. Eugene Coffin, U. S. A., was the guest and speaker at a smoke talk last Saturday evening. He spoke on "Observations of a Paymaster in the Philippines." He showed a large collection of native Filipino weapons. Many members and guests were present, and gave Capt. Coffin a most cordial reception.

Captain Coffin expressed himself as being very much pleased with his reception and pronounced the Newton Club one of the most enjoyable club houses it has been his privilege to visit.

Ladies' night at the Newton Club, the evening of the 25th inst., was termed "Harvard Night," and the entertainment was given by the Pierian Sodality of Harvard University. They rendered a most enjoyable program, and the large and enthusiastic audience showed their appreciation by loud applause and the number of encores called for. At the close of the concert, the members and their ladies enjoyed light refreshments and the remainder of the evening was spent socially. The hall was cleared, giving the young people an opportunity to dance, the members of the Pierian Sodality volunteered music, and for an hour dancing was enjoyed by the younger members of the club.

It met its first and only defeat at the hands of Radcliffe.

Clubs and Lodges.

Bentley Young, grand senior warden of the grand commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, on the occasion of the annual inspection. He was accompanied by a large number of prominent templars, and was met at the railroad station and escorted to the Masonic building, where at 6.30 a banquet was spread. The conclave was opened at 8, when the inspecting officer was received with honors, the 118 sir knights parading under command of Em. Sir Samuel Shaw as captain general, assisting; Em. Commander Nagle voicing a knightly welcome to Em. Sir Knight Young and to each of his suite. Sir Edmund G. Pond, generaissimo; Em. Sirs James B. Fuller, Albert L. Harwood, Lewis E. Binney, George T. Coppins, Rufus G. Brown, Frank K. Porter, Clarence Tebbitts, Samuel Shaw, Past Commanders Sirs Mitchell Wing and Wm. E. Peterson constituted the reception committee. ## The Oldest Mill

In 1639 Captain George Cook with his brother Joseph came from England, with the grant of a farm of six hundred acres of land, on which he at once erected a mill. Old records state that "it was a great enterprise for those days, and controlled the location of highways leading to Cambridge Mill and town." Captain Cook returned to England, and perished in 1652 in the war with Ireland. In 1670 the attorney for his heirs sold the estate to John Rolfe, of Nantucket, "who at once erected a new mill." Mr. William Cutter, a carpenter, married Rebecca, a daughter of John Rolfe, and the mill business subsequently passed into his hands. In the year 1800 Ephraim Cutter, proprietor, "built an entire new dam and erected new mills," one of which remained in use until 1883.

In 1850 the mills descended by inheritance to Dr. Benjamin Cutter, of Woburn, and on his death became the property, by purchase and inheritance, of Dr. Cutter's son-in-law, Mr. Samuel A. Fowle. In 1863, Mr. Fowle returned from the war a physical wreck, having been given up as an incurable by four different physicians. By the advice of his brother-in-law, Dr. Ephraim Cutter, a noted hygienist of New York City, he began the manufacture of entire wheat flour, by the exclusive use of which he entirely recovered his broken health in a comparatively short time. After thus demonstrating upon himself and by the use of the new product in his own family, he at once put the article on the market under the name of "Arlington Wheat Meal." This was the first entire wheat flour on the market. During the nearly two-score years since Arlington Wheat Meal was first ground, a wide-spread demand has come from the thoughtful and intelligent who have realized the importance of a nutritious, health-giving diet. In the manufacture of Arlington Wheat Meal purity has always been Mr. Fowle's first thought. To this end the best quality of wheat the market afforded was always purchased, the most thorough methods of cleansing, grinding, and packing were adopted; and the wide spread fame of Arlington Wheat Meal has fully justified this extra care. Rich in gluten and albuminoids, it furnishes a food that is almost perfect in nutrition. Better than beef or any animal foods, to those addicted to stomach and kidney troubles it becomes a medicine that cures.

Arlington Wheat Meal is put up in barrels, half barrels, and five pound cartons for family use. Buy it of your grocer in the original package only, to insure genuineness.

Boston Elevated Men Meet.

Last Tuesday evening some 1,500 motormen and conductors of the Boston Elevated road met at the Dudley Street Opera House for the purpose of showing their appreciation of the action of the management in increasing their wages and aiding them to secure coal during the past winter. During the meeting many speeches were made and the following resolutions were adopted:

"Resolved, That we, the employees of the Boston elevated railway company, representing all its divisions, in mass meeting assembled, desire hereby to express to the officers of the corporation by which we are employed, our hearty and grateful appreciation of their interest in the welfare, progress and comfort of their employees, and we condemn any misrepresentation or malicious statements as to our condition, attitude or feelings.

"And, particularly, we recognize with gratitude their efforts to allay the sufferings which might have been caused among us by the scarcity of coal during the past winter, and the kindly and humane motives which led them to supply for us at a moderate expense an adequate supply of fuel, thus enabling us and our families to dwell in warmth and comfort. "We view with satisfaction the recent increase in earnings which has been freely granted to us without demand on our part, thus enabling a vast army of men in this city to win more of the blessings of life, and we acknowledge the justice of the system which recognizes competency and faithful service with fitting reward.

"And in addition we appreciate to the fullest extent the adoption by our company of a system of old-age pensions which removes from many of us the apprehensions for the future which a lifetime spent in this service might have and which, in adding so materially to our prospects and prosperity has placed us in the van of American street railway employees. "Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the president, vice president and board of directors of the Boston elevated railway company."

DO THIS WHEN YOU GET UP IN THE MORNING.

"How do you feel when you get up in the morning?" asked a prominent local man of his neighbor the other day. "Do you feel rested and bright and fresh, or do you feel tired and does it take half a day for you to pull yourself together?" "It used to be hard work for me to get into gear in the morning," was the reply, "but after a great deal of doctoring and experimenting I found out what the trouble was and I can state positively that now when I arise I feel completely refreshed and ready for work at once." "How did you bring about this change, what do you do?" "A very simple method, indeed, cured me and I'd wager it will work a change in you. If you suffer from this so called morning lassitude and tired feeling, just try VITONE TONIC—this is the remedy that put me on my feet." VITONE TONIC has a positive, without stimulant effect, strengthens the entire system by logical processes and builds up the vitality—puts the system on a firm basis at one reliable, responsible drug store in every town and city in the land at 75 cents per large bottle. ## OPPORTUNITY AND DUTY.

Address of Rev. Minot J. Savage of New York
Before Unitarian Club of Newton.

FULL TEXT OF ADDRESS DELIVERED IN CHANNING CHURCH ON THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 19TH.

Mr. President, Friends:—

It is only within an hour that I have found out as to whether I was expected tonight to preach a sermon or make an address. Those of you who have been accustomed to listen to me in the past are probably saying to yourselves that it doesn't make much difference how I begin. I shall be sure to preach a sermon before I am through. One might say of me, perhaps, to quote words that you are very familiar with, what Lamb is said to have replied to Coleridge. Coleridge was a minister in his younger days, and one day he asked Lamb the question, "Did you ever hear me preach?" whereupon Lamb replied, "I n-n-never heard you do anything else." (Laughter.)

And so I fear that my former parishioners at any rate will be saying tonight that they never heard me do anything but preach. And as I don't know anything better for a man to do than to preach, I propose to keep at the business so long as I am able.

I am announced on the program to speak on "Our Opportunity and our Duty." I am going to begin with the last part—considering our duty first and then if there is any time left I may refer to our opportunity. I had two passages of Scripture which I jotted down in my note book and which I will refer to as my point of departure. The first is from the First Epistle to the Corinthians, the 4th Chapter and the 7th Verse: "What hast thou that thou didst not receive? now if thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory, as if thou hadst not received it?"

And the other is from the 10th Chapter of Matthew, the 8th Verse: "Freely ye have received, freely given."

I am going to speak for a little while about our duty as Unitarians. A duty is something which is owed, something which we ought to pay, something which is due. It seems to me that it is far too common for us to feel that we do not owe much of anything to other people. Whatever we have, whatever we are, we easily get into feeling that it is ours and that we have a right to do with it pretty much as we please. Is anything ours, in that sense? Is there anything with which we have a right to do merely as we please? I am going to ask you to consider the answer to those questions for a little while.

Let us begin with these bodies of ours. Suppose we think as we look in the glass that we ought to be fairly satisfied with ourselves. We are straight and all made muscular, in fairly good health, endowed with a physique which fairly contents us. Are these bodies ours? Have we a right to use these physical powers as we please? Where did we get our bodies? The human race, the scientists tell us, has been on this planet probably three hundred thousand years at least, and this human race from the beginning, from that far-off time in the jungle, when a creature first stood upon his feet and began to discover that he had hands, and to be able to look into the heavens and about him, asking questions—from that day to this, the human race has been at work, creating those wondrous physical faculties of ours. They are the result of the struggle, the evolution of the race. They have come from God through the ministry of man. They are an outright gift, not ours—something which we owe and which we ought so far as possible to pay.

To take a step higher.—these brains of ours. We think, perhaps, that we are fairly endowed with intellectual ability. We have had some opportunities for study, for cultivating these faculties that have been bestowed upon us. Where did the brain come from? Have we any right to pride ourselves upon our smartness, upon our keenness, upon our shrewdness, upon our intellectual ability of any kind? Have we any right to look down on any creature less well endowed than we? Where did the brain come from? This race from the beginning has been at work creating the brain. Every time that a man has thought, every time he has endeavored to solve some problem, in every effort to express himself, to utter some new, finer, higher idea, he has helped create the brain, for thinking makes brain, as much as rowing or exercise of any kind is able to create additional lung cells. Our intellectual power, then, is a gift from the race, and we owe it—all we know, all the power we possess, we owe to God through this marvelous humanity of which we are a part.

Suppose we glance for a moment at some special faculties of the mind. Take our aesthetic tastes. We love the beautiful. Where did that come from? We take delight in looking at pictures. Where did that power come from? From that far-off time that the archaeologist tells us of, when the first men began to scratch uncouth pictures on the walls of their caves, through all the men that have striven to feel after the forms of beauty and give them expression, from that day until this, the human race has been creating this sense of the beautiful, this power to give expression to the idea of beauty.

We are glad of an evening to sit down and read a book, history, biography, poetry, romance. Think what an inheritance this! Language, I suppose, is partly an endowment, partly a discovery, partly a creation. This wonderful language—think what it means: the power to express thought in sound or by gesture, and then the ability to make certain arbitrary marks on a piece of paper, so that as we look at them beautiful figures shall troop across the pages, we shall listen to the wonderful words of the characters that Shakespeare has created, we shall climb into the heavens or descend into the hells with Dante, with Milton; we shall be able to make a record of the past, to know what men thought and how they felt thousands of years ago—all this given us, an outright gift again of this wonderful race of ours.

And so in every department of human thought, no matter which way we look, we find to what an extent we are debtors to man, how little of all this is ours.

Have you a right to get away by yourself and enjoy your books, forgetting that there are thousands of others that have not attained the ability to enjoy as yet? selfishly to shout yourself away and say, "All this is mine, to do with as I please?" It is not yours at all. It is something given to you, a loan, something which, so far as you are able, you owe to humanity, so far as this humanity that is your great benefactor may be in need.

A step higher. We are moral beings. That means that we have learned how to live together, to get along with each other. We have learned that other people are as good as ourselves, that they have the same kind of feelings that we have, the same kind of desires, the same ability to enjoy or to suffer. This, again, whence has it come to us? It has come as the long result of the ages of effort on the part of the race to learn what it means to live.

A step higher still. We are religious beings, and religion is the one grandest thing in all the world. Religion inheres in the personal relation, the inevitable relation, the universal relation, inescapable relation, between the individual soul and God. No matter what your theory may be concerning the power that is manifested in the universe around us, that power is your Father. It has created you, placed you here, and your life, your success, your happiness, all that you desire, all that you care for, depends upon the degree of your knowledge of the laws of that relationship and your ability to obey them.

This, then, is the highest, grandest thing in all the world, and no matter what progress may be made in knowledge, in science, no matter what may come to the world in the future, remember one thing—religion is never to pass away. As well might a ship captain think that he might outlast the ocean, as well might an eagle think to outfly the atmosphere in which he finds leverage for his wings, as for a man to suppose that he can ever escape this eternal relationship which exists between him and God. If you are an agnostic and say you do not know anything about that Power, still that Power exists and is your Father, your Creator, and you are dependent on that Power every moment of your life, and all that you desire hinges upon your ability to know something about that Power and to conform to its ways. If a man tells me he knows there is nothing but matter, then matter—dirt, if you choose so to phrase it—is your Father; it has created you brought you here and the relationship that exists is still untouched and is inescapable. Religion, then, is the grandest thing in all the world. Let me dwell for a moment on one or two thoughts suggested by this.

We Unitarians are supposed to lay a great deal of emphasis on the intellect. We care a great deal for knowledge. We love science. We want people to think as well as to feel, and there are those who tell us that we overemphasize the intellectual side of life. I think sometimes we do. Perhaps, however, we can forgive ourselves so long as the great majority of religionists in the world overemphasize the emotional side and neglect the intellectual, even to the extent sometimes of talking about sacrificing the pride of the intellect, humbling it, and bowing it in the presence of God.

While I believe in knowledge, while I love science, while I look to it for guidance, I still feel and I want you all to feel that the great thing, after all, is religion. What is the deepest thing in a man? Not his brain. The deepest thing in life is a feeling; it is consciousness. And of what value is the brain? Of no value at all except as a guide for life. Life is the thing, feeling is the thing. Love, fear, hope, tenderness, consecration, devotion, these things that we speak of as the faculties of the soul—these are the deepest, highest, most important things in human life.

Suppose you are in mid ocean on a big steamship, of what importance is the chart, of what importance is the compass, of what importance is the helm, the man at the wheel? Of a great deal of importance. But why? The one most important thing on that ship is the passengers—the people, high or humble, rich or poor, learned or ignorant; the people, with their feelings, their fears, their hopes, their loves, their aspirations; and the only thing that the compass and the chart and the man at the wheel are worth is to help the people arrive by and at their desired heaven. And so the great thing in this human life of ours is the soul—the soul, with its emotions, with its loves, with its hopes, with its aspirations, with its worship, the soul that from the beginning, under every sky, among all people, has been feeling out after and trying to find God.

This, then, is the great thing—this religious life of ours. Where did this come from? Have we a right to pride ourselves on having a better religion than other people? Or if we really think we have a better one, ought it to make us humble and simple and devoted? Ought it not to make us burn with enthusiasm and earnestness and longing to make others as blessed as we?

This religion is a gift of the race, coming from the far-off beginning, from the time when men believed in a hundred or a thousand gods—gods of the wind, of the waters, of the sun, of the moon, of the stars; from the time when they believed all the air was full of invisible powers that could hurt or could help them. Up the ages, what has been the history of this religious struggle of men? Far off we see that magnificent figure of Abraham, going out because the inner voice had spoken to him, leaving behind him his father, his mother, his home, his people, going out, not knowing whether he went. We owe a debt to him. The prophets—Elijah, fleeing from the wrath of an idolatrous king into the wilderness and feeling himself alone. Paul, one of the grandest and most magnificent men that ever lived, the great liberator who broke down the barriers of the old time and set Christianity free, giving it as an inheritance to the nations. And then from that day up the ages, the mighty souls—Savonarola, Bruno, Wyclif Huss, Luther, Calvin—all of them grand heretics and radicals in their time, every one of them, as we have always been the great leaders and guides of the nations. These men have suffered, they have been burned at the stake, they have been racked and tortured, they have been torn from their friends, they have been persecuted, driven from city to city,—they have suffered that you and I might sit here tonight in peace in this great liberty where with Christ has set us free.

Now let us ask—how little we appreciate it! How little we understand the price that has been paid for it! How ready people are to go back into some older form of faith because they do not understand at what a price this freedom has been purchased, how rare, how sweet, how rich a thing it is. The world has suffered and struggled for thousands of years to help us to these higher and nobler thoughts of the religious life which is our heritage today, and it is not ours selfishly to enjoy, it is not ours to take or leave as we please. It is not ours as a luxury for a pleasant Sunday morning; it is not ours to treat in this cavalier patronizing fashion which is so common with us. It is the grandest gift that has come to the race, something to be cherished, something to which we ought to consecrate ourselves, something that means life and makes all the difference of value. For it is not knowledge, let me say again, which gives life its value. It is not knowledge which comforts us in our greatest sorrows what we ordinarily call knowledge. It is not familiarity with the constitution of the heavens; it is not being learned in regard to the geological formation of the earth under our feet. It is not the higher mathematics, it is not Latin and Greek, it is not music, it is not art; it is none of these things which we need in our deepest and most serious hours. We need, if we can, to know what life means and whether there is any outcome, something to justify all this long process through which the world is going. It is knowledge of life, knowledge of the soul, its conscious relationship with God; it is the feeling that there is something deeper than all these experiences, something which makes us able to triumph over conditions. Suppose I am rich, suppose I am poor; suppose I am learned, suppose I am ignorant; suppose I live in a beautiful house, suppose I live in a little tiny cottage or cabin; suppose I am able to dress luxuriously, suppose I must wear the plainest and simplest clothes,—these things are the superficial matters of life. This life is a school, and the principal thing is not the kind of bench you sit on nor the kind of clothes you wear, nor whether your text books are bound in Russia or are not bound at all. It is the question of learning our lessons, of getting ready to graduate, and if we have got a clue to the meaning of life and are conscious that we are personally related to God, then nothing else matters very much; we have conquered.

Now, we have learned what life means; we have gotten the best out of it and are ready for the next higher step that waits us over there. Now all these things that I have been enumerating have been given to us. We have no right to be proud of any of them; we have no right to feel that we own any of them. And now—you may not think it a climax, and it is not in the rhetorical sense—I wish to speak for a moment about money. I have heard it said, "I do not owe a dollar in the world. There is not a dishonest dollar in my possession. I have earned it. I have come rightly by everything that I have; it is mine." And alas! it seems to me far too common that people should feel that it is theirs whether they can make the other claims or not; however they have come by it, they seem to think it is theirs.

But now consider a minute. Suppose you have that peculiar ability—nobody, I suppose, is able to describe it—which makes you successful in your search for money. There are people who have a genius for making money, just as there are those who have a genius for not making it. (Laughter.) There are people who have a musical genius, there are people who have a literary genius, there are people who have a mathematical genius, and so there are men who are financial geniuses. But let me say in passing, this is not at any rate the greatest kind of genius. I have the profoundest respect for Agassiz, who, when some one came to him and offered him fifty thousand dollars to give a course of lectures during one winter, simply replied that he could not stop up to make money, he had more important things on hand. I have infinite respect for those men who give their thought, their passion to other things so as to feel that money is of practically no account. But there are men who have this financial genius, and they accumulate a vast amount of money, and they feel, "This is mine, and I have a right to do with it as I please." Is it theirs? Have they a right? Take it right home to yourselves, everyone of you, whether you have one dollar or a million—is that due to you?

Let us see. In the first place, this peculiar brain power which enables a man to be a financial genius is a gift of the race, something inherited and which you did not create yourselves, just as much as any other. Then consider the opportunities. How long has it taken the world to create the conditions that make this accumulation possible? Think how many centuries it took to cover the oceans with fleets of sailing ships, to turn them into ferryways between one country and another. Think how many centuries passed before men discovered the power of steam, of electricity, before they were able to create all these modern conditions out of which the gigantic fortunes have sprung. And then think of the moral side of how many centuries it took, how many thousands of years, for men to learn to trust each other—to create these conditions of confidence which make large financial operations possible. And then how long did it take the world to create conditions of peace, stable forms of government? I wonder if you ever stop to think that one of the most difficult things in the world, one that men have labored longest at, has been the attainment of stable and free government? The progress of the world politically has been a uneven balance between anarchy and tyranny. Only here on this continent for the first time in the history of the world have men been able partially to solve the problem so that we can say we have the strongest, most stable, and at the same time the freest government in all the world. And all this is necessary as a condition of your carrying on your gigantic financial operations.

The money, then, is it yours? Not a single cent of it is yours, in the sense in which people ordinarily speak of it, as though they owned it and had a right to do with it as they pleased. And yet when a man who wishes to help humanity in some direction comes and asks you—not to give him anything, but to consider the question of human need in some department, you are apt to treat him as a beggar, and if you give him a life subscription, pride yourself as being generous. If you have given anything you have simply begun in a little way, in some on direction, to pay a part of a gigantic debt, the whole of which you owe to the human race. There is not a faculty, there is not a power, there is not anything you are, there is not anything you have, that is yours in that lordly sense of personal possession.

Now, let us look a moment at the question of paying our debts. What shall we do for humanity? I do not mean by what I have just said that you shall turn over your property to the first man who comes along and asks for it. Perhaps it is the wisest thing you can do not to give a cent of it to this man or that who pleads. I never yet have felt, when I have asked for money myself and have been refused—I have never felt quite sure that the man's decision was not correct. (Laughter.) It is not a particular plea this way or that which I am talking about; it is a deep-down principle I wish you to consider.

Now what will you do for the world? If you give a man money when he is hungry or when he is without proper clothing, or when he has no place where he could sleep during a cold winter night, you have helped him or she, and he will be grateful to you for it. But the real service, the good service, is to help the root of the difficulty is not there. The root of this great problem of poverty in these great cities of ours is almost always a moral and religious one. If all men would begin tomorrow morning to live out the simple teachings of Jesus, the teachings of human experience, think and feel and live as they ought to, poverty would disappear in a year except in the few cases of people who are ill or mentally or physically disabled in some way.

So the root of the difficulty is something deeper than this surface one of mere temporary need. Take the great industrial strife which is going on at the present time. I do not believe that any commission appointed by the President of the United States or any other political device is going to end this strife. I do not believe we are going to settle the labor question. You never settle any question permanently in a growing universe. You settle one question and tomorrow you are face to face with another. That is what growing means. But the difficulty here again is a moral and religious one.

Suppose the owners of the coal mines in Pennsylvania and the lead-mines in the West, the associations could only have gotten together and the one purpose of trying to find out just what it was right to do would have been any great difficulty in finding it? So long as men are trying to find out how they can get the best end of a bargain, and there are two persons trying to find it out just so long, of course, you will have strife, so long you will have antagonism. The only way by which you can settle these great problems is the moral and religious way. I am coming to something in a minute; these are only steps leading toward it.

The Socialists wish to reorganize the world, and it is a very easy thing to sit down with a pencil and a piece of paper and lay out a perfect scheme of human life. The only trouble is that people won't pay any attention to it after you have done it, and so it fails. The Socialists wish to reorganize society. But here are three men, standing in certain relations to each other. You take those three men and let them remain just the same kind of men they are now and change the relations in which they stand, and what have you done? You have the same three men that you had before. I do not look for any perfect human society as the result of any social or political reorganization whatsoever. You never will get a perfect society until you

Bad Taste in the Mouth

When you get up in the morning with a coated tongue and a bad taste in the mouth, you may or may not be seriously ill, but if there is any disease going, your system is just right to catch it.

We know what you think—first you are half persuaded to try Vinol, and then you say to yourself: "That's the same story all the medicines tell; I've heard it before."

But Vinol is not like other medicines. If it were, we shouldn't be talking about it in any special way. If you will regulate your bowels with Vinol and take Vinol to improve your digestion and assimilation of food, these troubles, with the headache, "liver complaint," neuralgia, rheumatic pains, and nerve troubles will disappear as by magic.

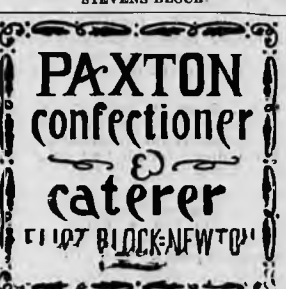

We pay back the money if it doesn't help you.

Opportunity and Duty.

get perfect individuals to make it of. And when you get the perfect individuals it will not make any difference what kind of social organization you have. Any organization will work well with good people, and no organization will work well with any other kind of people. The root of all these problems as I said then, is moral and religious.

Now what? What does this lead to? It leads to the kind of meeting that we are having here tonight. It leads to a consideration of what church stands for in human life. What is the church? I am very sorry that we are passing through such a phase as we are at the present time of development. I am glad that I can believe that we are passing through it and that we are not going to stay in it. But we Unitarians and liberals generally have reacted so violently from the old church organizations and that which they stood for that the result is that we have almost no organization at all and do not stand for anything very definite and distinct very positive.

Think for a minute. What is a church? Jesus organized no church. Jesus wrote no creed. He established no sacraments, no rituals. But notice one thing he put into human society certain teachings started certain impulses and they led to certain natural and inevitable results, and the growth of the church was one of them. The church is a natural organization—an inevitable organization, if people are wise and care.

This is the era of organization. Two people find that they are not able to accomplish alone what they wish to, and they join together and make a firm. One firm finds that it cannot do alone what it wishes to, and it joins with another firm, and these join with a dozen others, and you have the trusts. I am a believer in the trusts not in the bad trusts, of course, but I am a thorough believer in the trust principle. I believe it is a natural, necessary next in the financial movement of the world, just as inevitable as any other organization, and right in principle. Why do people organize? Simply because they can accomplish a good deal more organized than they can in any other way.

Now comes the question as to whether there is any duty connected with a church organization. That depends upon your outlook. Do you or do you not believe in the religious life? If you do not believe in it, why, then, of course you are not going to work for it. But suppose you do believe in it—suppose you believe what I believe with my whole soul, that the religious life is the grandest life in all the world, that the one thing of importance, as I said a moment ago, is that people shall find out how to live. Now that means religion—it means right relation to God and to one's fellow-men. Suppose, now, you believe in the religious life—is there any duty connected with the church? What does the church mean? It means simply that people who believe in the religious life find out just as naturally and necessarily as people find out in any other direction, in finance or science or music, or art—that organization is important, that they can accomplish more by joining hands and working together than they can possibly accomplish alone. That is the principle that underlies the church. In any direction, wherever there is anything that people know about and care about, you will find an organization. There are musical associations, there are art associations, there are scientific societies, there are organizations of every kind, whatever people believe in and want to accomplish, that they organize for, because it is the only sane, the only rational thing to do. And the logic of it is nothing less than this—that it is the duty, the prime duty, the first, last, middle, greatest duty of all this world, so far as the practical work of human relationship is concerned—for every man and every woman in the world to belong to some church. What church? Why, the church that best represents your ideas, your highest thought and your noblest aspirations and your grandest and dearest hopes. If it is not the Unitarian church, if you do not believe in the Unitarian church, then don't go near it. If you do believe in the Unitarian church, then, no matter what the attractions, social or any other kind, may be to lead you to some other church, be a Unitarian. Stand for what you believe. Have some convictions and live them out. There are only a few people, it seems to me, that have any convictions. They have a lot of prejudices and notions and feelings and whims, but only a few have convictions. Conviction is one of the rarest and grandest things in the world; it is something that you have become convinced of. After thinking about it and you have made up your mind. When you have done that, follow it. It is your duty, I say, not to belong to this church, not to belong to the Unitarian church, but it is your duty—I have no hesitancy in saying this over a dozen times—it is your highest duty—to associate yourselves with that church which represents your highest and truest religious ideas. Why? Because, as I said a moment ago, it is your duty to do all you can to pay back the debt you owe to the world for the magnificent inheritance of every kind that is yours, and you help men the most when you help them to think and to live.

Let me interject a word right here for the sake of any young men who may be present and who have not yet decided what they will do in the future. I believe that the ministry is the most important, the highest, the grandest work in which any man can possibly engage because it means helping people find out how to think and how to live, and there is nothing else you can possibly do for man that approaches that in importance. I know that the ministry is sometimes looked at askance the present time. That means that people are drifting, floating, that they have no clear ideas as to what it means, the significance of the deepest and highest thing in life

It is your duty, then, to associate yourselves with some church.

Now let me appeal for a moment to you laymen. I do not need, perhaps, to talk to the women so much. The women, whatever we may think the reason is, are readier to support the churches than the men. Let me appeal, then, for a little while to the men, set them thinking just a bit, if they will, with me. Here is this church; I will take this for my illustration, though what I have to say applies equally well to any other. You care enough about it, perhaps, to take a pew. You want a place to go when you feel like it, or to invite a friend. You want to provide your wife and daughter an opportunity to go if they wish to, so you care enough about it to take a pew. You hire a minister; you pay him what you regard as a reasonable salary.

Now, a great many people think they have really done something when they have done that. Consider a minute and answer for yourselves this question. Is it the minister's duty, is it Mr. Hudson's duty here in Newton, to help make the town of Newton what it ought to be, to comfort people in their sorrows, to help them think out their life problems, to help them live nobly, to help them to be men and women, to help them find out the real, deep, high meaning of life, is it his duty any more than it is yours? If it is, why? What is the difference between Mr. Hudson and any man who sits when he happens to find it convenient in his pew? You say you have hired the minister to do this. You haven't done anything of the kind. You have chosen him, if you have had sense enough to know what you were doing, you have chosen him for your leader, and you have assigned a certain amount of salary to him why? So that he will be free to give his whole time to it. That is the only difference. You cannot give all your time to it, because you are engaged in some other occupation. But it is just as much your duty to give as much thought, as much time, as much money to helping out the religious life of this town as it is his. As God looks down upon His children does He not ask each one of them to do his duty, to do all he can to make the world sweet and fine and true and noble, and is it not just as much the duty of one as it is that of another? Think this thing over carefully some day with yourselves, and answer the question honestly. Now how can you help on the world?

Let me consider the constitution of a church just a moment. When you organize a church, when you, in accordance with what I believe you ought to do, have become members, when you have taken pews, when the debts of the church are paid, when her finances are in good working order, then what? What is the church for? It is for two things. You are here to help each other, and you are here to save the world, to spread the contagion of your life, your truth, your love, your service. Now when you have got the church in good working order, what do most people think about it? Why, they say, that church is doing splendidly now; we have got everything in good shape and all we have to do is to keep it running. My friends, when you have got there you have just begun. You are only ready to go to work. You have not accomplished the work for which a church exists at all; or at the most have only half done it.

Suppose you organize an army. That is the kind of fighting they used to say when I was a boy that McClellan did on the Peninsula. Suppose you organize an army; you have got it splendidly equipped, you have a good camp, you have fine uniforms, you have all the cannon and rifles you want; you have drilled and gotten into first rate condition. Then what? What have you done it for? You have not won a battle, have not gone out to conquer one inch of new territory. When an army is splendidly organized and equipped, then it is just ready to do something. That is the next step. So when you have got your church organized and the debts paid and treasury in good condition and all your committees and everything in good working order, then live out the life of a church. Religion is not worth anything if it is not worth giving away. And so if you have simply gotten some little thing to keep as your own private possession, you haven't anything that is of any value.

One of the principal ways in which you can help your minister is by going to church. I marvel sometimes when I look over the world and see these people regard these things. I know people who stay away from church because they do not happen to like the choir. If the choir does not give as good music as you can get at a high-priced concert, why, then consider one of two things: either remember, which is the wiser thing, that it is not the business of the choir to give concerts, or else remember that if you are going to have an exquisite first class concert, you must pay for it one of the two. (Laughter.) But a church does not exist for the sake of giving musical entertainments.

Suppose you do not happen to think that the minister is the most eloquent man in the world. Think again; use a little common sense about these things. What is the minister for? I know it is pleasant to hear a brilliant orator than it is a dull, not very interesting man. But you have not hired your minister to give a course of brilliant intellectual entertainments; that is not what he is for. If you want that, then you must hire a man who is competent to give it. But the minister ought not to be blamed for that. He is your spiritual leader. You go to church to learn what you ought to do; to consult, to co-operate together, to help cultivate and develop the religious life of the members of the church, and to spread, as I said, the contagion of that religious life in the regions beyond the limits of your present parish, not only to save in this highest and truest sense of the word this city of Newton, but to spread the thought and life that we believe in all over the land. This is what a church is for.

Now at the close, have we any exceptional opportunity for the kind of work we believe in? Friends, there is always opportunity for an earnest man who believes something and cares to accomplish it, no matter what the obstacles may be. There are no obstacles today to compare for one moment with those that have stood in the way of the noble and earnest and consecrated souls of the past. But there are exceptional opportunities for us at the present time. The intelligent part of the world is rapidly coming to be with us in sympathy. The old conception of God is passing away; a nobler and higher and finer idea is coming to take its place. The universe is broadening and deepening, and a higher life is coming to the world. All scholarship is with us. Critical scholarship studies the history of the origin of these books that make up our Bible; historical scholarship traces the origin and growth of the church; science, in its conceptions of things, the origin and nature of man,—all these things that we believe in that chime in with the main ideas for which we stand,—these are growing more and more in the world. So that there never was a time since the earth began when there was such free and open opportunity for the work in which we suppose ourselves to be engaged as there exists today. It seems to me that the one great trouble with the present age is that we have been blinded by a flood of new light. The grandest revelation that the world has known has come to this generation,—a new universe, new thought of God, new ideas as to the origin, nature and destiny of man, a new conception of religion and the religions of mankind. We have grown out of the old universe and we are not yet born into the new. There are thousands who wonder in the midst of these great changes as to whether the necessity for the church is not going by. I believe, friends, that the necessity never was greater; that there never will be a time when we shall outgrow the need of this great, deep, high religious life. I believe that when we are through with the present confusion, when we have cleared our eyes and looked over the world and understood the condition of things, we shall find that the church has only begun its wonderful career. An organized religion, a grander though a freer service, a nobler ideal—these are to mark the time that is ahead of us. Let me be among those choice souls that shall have the joy of having anticipated the coming of this grander time and done what we could to pay the debt that we owe to the race by preparing for it, by helping on today the condition of things that shall result in that grander and nobler triumph when the prayers of the past shall be answered, when the visions of the seers shall have been realized, and the knowledge of God shall cover the earth, as the waters fill the sea." ## Suicide of Mrs. Rice

Newton people were shocked to hear of the death Monday night of Mrs. George M. Rice, by inhaling gas, at the home of her father-in-law, Marshall O. Rice, Centre street. She had affixed a rubber tube to a gas jet and inhaled gas through it. As soon as her body was discovered on Tuesday morning, Dr. West, the family physician, was summoned, but he said Mrs. Rice had been dead several hours. It is believed that Mrs. Rice became despondent over the continued poor health of her husband, who had returned recently from Colorado. Mrs. Rice was formerly Miss Fannie Thurston of Cambridge, and was well known in Boston, Newton and Cambridge. Her husband, George M. Rice, is a member of one of the oldest families in this city. His father, Mr. O. Rice, is engaged in the clothing business at 101 Arch street, Boston, and the son is associated with him. Besides her husband, Mrs. Rice is survived by two children, a son aged ten and a daughter aged thirteen.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon, Rev. E. M. Noyes officiating and the services were private. The burial was at Newton Cemetery.

BOSTON HERALD.

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

STORE NEWS.

We catch our customers as young as possible—when they are small boys.

Then we keep them with us until they bring in their own boys to be fitted—and not seldom their boys' boys, too.

Every year we graduate a large "class" from our Boys' Clothing Department into the Men's Department; and therefore, we have to keep our "kindergarten" constantly filling up.

For these reasons we give very careful attention to our Boys' Department—it is one of the corner stones of a great clothing business.

Today's news in respect to boys' wearables takes the form of a bit of about Sailor Suits and Co.

STORE NEWS.

Time was when retail clothing stores gave practically all their attention to the "average" man—that is to say, the man of average height, average breast measure and average length of leg.

The stout man and the thin man were either forced to employ a custom tailor or to accept a more or less unbecoming "misfit."

We bore our part in changing these conditions.

We slackened no whit of our attention to the "average" man, but at the same time we put upon our counters garments suitable for either a Falstaff or a Cassius.

The result was most satisfactory.
